ROOSEVELT'S FRIEND, FIGURE IN THAW CASE

Craig Wadsworth, Society Man and Former Rough Rider, Involved in Embassy Scandal Through Evelyn Thaw's Testimony, It is Said—London Paper Demands Recall.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 8.—There is a commotion in London society, according to cable messages from the British capital to-day, over the scandal in the United States Embassy caused by the testimony of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw at the trial of her husband, Harry K. Thaw, for the murder of Stanford White, in which she denounced one of the embassy secretaries for his conduct toward her and her mother while they were there in the Summer of 1903.

The young man to whom Evelyn Thaw referred, it is declared, is no less a personage than Craig Wadsworth, former society man of this city, noted Rough Rider, personal friend of President Roosevelt, and millionaire. A London paper dema nds that Mr. Wadsworth be recalled.

Evelyn Thaw testified that Wadsworth broke into her mother's room at Claridge's Hotel in the British capital and that so overcome was he in his efforts at worrying her that she cabled from Bologne to Stanford White to "call him off."

It was declared that Mrs. Nesbit had told Wadsworth that her daughter had run away with Thaw and had taken their sole letter of credit along. The woman appealed to Vera Simonton, who paid her return fare to America. Those facts were communicated to friends of the second secretary in a letter which was received only a short time ago. At the same time he wrote to District Attorney Jerome giving ter and later to May Goelet.

Wadsworth, who is an intimate friend of President Roosevelt and served with distinction as a sergeant during the Spanish-American campaign, has led a life free from scandal. Everyone he was regarded as the best of all cotillion leaders and held a high place in society.

When he went to London he was received with open arms, and to-day holds the same position there as he did in New York. He is immensely wealthy. He was once reported engaged to Miss Daisy Leiter.

Mrs. Holman, Evelyn Thaw's mother, who figured in London incident involving, it is reported, Craig Wadsworth, second secretary of the American Embassy. It was in effort to prevent further trouble Thaw is alleged to have asked White to use his influence.

President's Son Passes Crisis; Doctors HOPE FOR ARCHIE'S LIFE

Report To-day That Quentin Roosevelt Also Has Diphtheria.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The condition of Archie Roosevelt, the President's son, who is suffering from a severe attack of diphtheria, is more encouraging to-day than at any time in the past eighteen hours, though the patient is still in a very critical condition.

When the veteran police officer, who every night keeps vigil over the living apartments of the President's home, appeared at the front door of the White House at 6 o'clock he announced that Dr. Alexander Lambert on leaving the sick room at 5 o'clock had said that Archie had slept fairly well since 2 o'clock, and hoped for the child's recovery.

Despite the fact that the President did not retire until 2 o'clock, he arose shortly after 6 o'clock and at once communicated with Dr. Kennedy, who had relieved Dr. Lambert at the sick boy's bedside. Mrs. Roosevelt spent almost the entire night in Archie's room.

Anxiety Over Heart Condition.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth telephoned to the White House before breakfast to inquire as to her brother's condition. The greatest anxiety is felt by the doctors over the weak heart condition of the patient, and Dr. Lambert is administering heart stimulants to prevent another sinking spell to-day.

There is a also a report here to-day that Quentin Roosevelt, the fourth and the youngest son of the President, also has diphtheria. Quentin has not been seen about the White House for three days, nor has he communicated with any of his companions.

Archie had a sinking spell at 9 o'clock last night, and for a time it was feared that he would be awake last any minute. To save his life the physicians administered 2,000 units of anti-toxin, and other heroic methods were applied.

Hopeful Bulletin Given.

The following bulletin was given out at the White House at 9 a. m.:

"The physicians' report this morning is that Archie Roosevelt had a good night, and his condition is most gratifying.

"The President has been with the patient frequently, exercising the same precaution as the physicians as to infection."

HIGHWAYMAN ROBS CONTRACTOR OF $900

DARING HOLD-UP MAN BEATS WINTHROP RESIDENT IN SHADOW OF BARRACKS.

Police of Winthrop, Revere, Chelsea and Boston are to-day searching for a highwayman who last night held up and robbed Charles F. March of Winthrop of $900 right near the Battery Station on the Boston, Revere Branch of the Eastern Railroad.

March is to-day much the worse for his encounter with the robbers who kneeled him down and terribly lacerated his right hand and wrist by biting during his struggle.

March, who lives at Winthrop and Main streets, Winthrop, is a contracting carpenter and is well-to-do. Yesterday he went to Boston and had cashed a check for $900 to pay for some materials which he was to buy to-day. In his pockets besides the $900 he had $1.05 on his person when he boarded the 11:05 boat for Winthrop at Rowe's wharf last night.

Alighting at Battery station at about 11:30 Mr. March started in his home by way of the new running close to Fort Banks and the barracks of the soldiers. Several dwelling houses were also close by and he was mindful of any fear.

Suddenly a man, about 145 pounds in weight, five feet and a half in height and clad in black and a black derby hat, leaped upon the contractor from behind.

March was knocked down before he could raise his arm in resistance or beat off the highwayman began to beat his victim mercifully, at the same time fiercely stunning him. Then he took March's right hand in his mouth, and biting it savagely all the time, searched his victim's pockets.

About that time March began to call for help and the thief, getting the roll of bills, leaped to his feet and disappeared just as soldiers from the fort and several neighbors ran to the scene.

A hasty search was made for the highwayman but it was fruitless.

TO CALL COUNTESS AS STATE WITNESS?

NEW YORK, March 8.—The Countess of Yarmouth, the gifted sister of Harry K. Thaw, who is on trial for the murder of Stanford White, it was announced before the case was resumed to-day, would probably be called as a witness in rebuttal by District Attorney Jerome.

The report was that Thaw's sister would be used to strengthen the effect of the prosecution to prove that Evelyn Thaw did not tell Harry the story of Stanford White, at least in the manner she testified she did on the stand.

The whole case, now that the defence is all in, hinges, it is believed, on whether Jerome can prove that Evelyn Thaw did not tell Thaw the story about White. The truth of that story does not enter the case. The effect of it, true or untrue, is the basis of the defence of the young man's mad act on the roof garden.

ATTACK WIFE'S CREDIBILITY.

Harry Thaw, his sister, the Countess, and Evelyn were together a great deal in London before the marriage of the couple. Jerome thinks, according to the story current to-day, that from the lips of Thaw's sister he may get some doubt on the credibility of Thaw's wife.

Evelyn Thaw was in the best of spirits to-day. It was told in her praise of the calm and composure she showed in her testimony.

"Do you expect that your husband will be acquitted?" she was asked.

"Of course," was the prompt reply, with a look of surprise on her beautiful face that such a question could be asked.

The text of Lawyer Delmas's speech to the jury—his greatest oratorical effort of his life—will be:

"Gentlemen of the jury, I simply want to ask you one question. What would you have done as men had you been in Harry K. Thaw's place?"

On hearing that the defence had decided to rest its case, Mr. Jerome said:

"It seems to me that the evidence should all be in by Wednesday. Then, by giving the defence one day for the closing addresses and allowing me the same amount of time, the case should go to the jury some time on Friday of next week.

"Will you go to the jury with the case or will you ask for a commission in lunacy?"

CASE WILL GO TO JURY.

"On the evidence as it stands now I will certainly go to the jury," replied the District Attorney. "If there is nothing between society and anyone who wishes to attack it but a 'brain storm,' we had better go back to the days of the frontier and every man take out a pistol permit."

There is a story that the District Attorney had already selected his first witness on rebuttal in the person of a newspaper reporter, who had a talk with Thaw immediately after the shooting of Stanford White, and who identified the prisoner after he had given the name of John Smith at the Tenderloin police station.

Delmas's move in closing the case with Mrs. William Thaw's testimony without calling Mrs. Josephine Thaw Morse to make answer to a long impending question, sensational and carefully prepared by lawyers as an exceedingly shrewd move, that is in perfect keeping with his direction of the case. The senior counsel for the defendant has noted the attitude of the jurors toward expert testimony, and he has shrewdly decided to make what advantage may be securing to his client by sparing the twelve men any further ennui on this score.

CALL MAY M'KENZIE FIRST IN REBUTTAL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Just before the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White was resumed to-day a report spread through the Criminal Courts building that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw would be re-called to the stand early next week as a witness for the State. She cannot be used in rebuttal of her own testimony, but will be used to introduce certain letters.

It was announced at the office of the District Attorney that May McKenzie, Evelyn's dearest friend, of Boston, would be the first witness called on Monday.

Immediately after the opening of court Lawyer Delmas for the defence made this announcement:

"The defence rests."

District Attorney Jerome then addressed the court as follows:

"When the court adjourned on Wednesday I had no reason to expect that this course would be pursued. I expected to be confronted with a new hypothetical question. Mr. Delmas said that he would prepare this question, and it would take several hours to present it. Although I had no knowledge of the question myself, I have devoted the time since the adjournment in going over carefully the facts already presented, feeling that they would be embodied in that question.

No Objection by Defence.

"I did this for the purpose of cross-examination. Much to my surprise at 3:30 yesterday afternoon I was notified of the intention of the defence to rest its case. Under the circumstances, I believe it only reasonable that I be allowed time to prepare my rebuttal. You can readily see that I have not even had time to summon my witnesses."

Justice Fitzgerald turned to Mr. Delmas, who said that the defence would not oppose any motion to adjourn. The Court then said:

"Under the circumstances, I think it well for the people to have an adjournment."

Court then adjourned until Monday at 10:30 a. m.

Thaw in Good Spirits.

Thaw came into court smiling, evidently aware of the intention to adjourn the case. He seemed in better spirits to-day than at any time during the trial.

Thaw carried the usual pasteboard folder in which he carries his mail to court. He called the attention of Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly to the fact that he had his papers with him, while the lawyers had not brought theirs. The counsel table was without the usual stack of law books and papers. The proceedings lasted but a few moments. Thaw then went back to the Tombs.

Shortly after court adjourned a process server for Jerome went to the Hotel Latine to subpoene Miss McKenzie to appear as a witness on Monday.

Kidnappers in Mystery That Stirs State Ask

RANSOM OR DEATH TO BOY

SCOUR BAY FOR WOMAN IN STRANGE SLOOP

$20,000 Reward Offered by Father Increased by Legislature to $22,000.

COUPLE SEEN NEAR HOME

By Boston American Leased Wire.

DOVER, Del., March 8.—All doubt in the minds of the army of detectives and farmers who are to-day searching for Horace N. Marvin, Jr., son of Dr. Horace Marvin, who disappeared mysteriously from the Marvin farm on the Bay Shore, on Monday, that he is in the hands of kidnappers was restored to-day by the receipt of a letter demanding a heavy ransom and a penalty of refusal being the boy's death.

There is every reason to believe also that one of the kidnappers was a woman disguised as a man. It is the theory of the searchers that the boy was grabbed from the wagon, where he was playing a short distance from his home and taken on board a small sloop, which sailed down Delaware Bay.

Mysterious Sloop Seen.

This theory is strengthened by the report that a mysterious sloop was seen in the bay on Monday afternoon. It was reported by the marine station near Reedy Island. These oil board acted so strangely as to attract the attention of the men in charge of the station. Efforts are being made to trace this sloop, which was headed toward Wilmington. This mysterious sloop was seen by the marine reporters an hour after the boy disappeared.

Then, too, it is believed a mysterious woman and man were hiding in a shanty within half a mile of the Marvin home on the day of the disappearance. Mr. Charles Woodhall, whose husband formerly owned the Marvin farm, went to this cabin yesterday to the search for the missing child. The cabin has not been occupied since last Summer.

Reward of $22,000.

A reward of $22,000 has been offered for the return of the boy. Of this amount Dr. Marvin will give $20,000 and the State $2,000, the Legislature having rushed through a bill offering this amount for the return of the boy and the capture of his kidnappers.

Dr. Marvin is firmly of the belief that one if the kidnappers was a woman. He believes also that exaggerated stories of his wealth prompted the stealing of the boy.

Grandmother Has Vision.

"I believe ne of the kidnappers was a woman because of the stories I have heard," said the physician. "Then, too, I believe the kidnappers would employ a woman, or at least have one associated with them so the child would be cared for.

Mrs. Swift, grandmother of the missing boy, who has cared for him since the death of Mrs. Marvin in Sioux City, Iowa, several months ago told me of a vision she had of a man running from the farm carrying the boy and stealing into the swamps. This dream came to her the night after the child disappeared.

NOT UNITED CIGAR STORES

Owing to the similarity of the names of the two corporations, the report telegraphed from New York that the American Tobacco Company was negotiating for the absorption of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company has led to a misapprehension as to the United Cigar Stores Company.

"The two companies are entirely distinct," said a local representative of the United Cigar Stores Company to-day. "The Cigar Stores Company is not the object of the reported negotiations. The United Cigars merely a line of their own. They take the total output of dozens of factories which produce hundreds of brands. Then there is a general demand all over the country for the company that is being rallied of is solely in the manufacturing business.

NOVELLI GIVES ITALIAN 'LEAR'

Ernesto Novelli appeared in the Italian version of Shakespeare's "King Lear" last night at the Majestic Theatre. His performance of the role of the mad king at times approached greatness and was at all times a dignified and worthy one. He was at his best in moments of passion and of rage, sacrificing somewhat in his carrying forward of the tempestuous notion the more subtle qualities involved in the slow comprehension of the ingratitude of his daughter and in the gradual loss of mental power.

His support was in general excellent and Rossi's Cordelia was particularly commendable.

"La Morte Civile" will be presented by Novelli to-night.

PERKINS RESTITUTION ON HEELS OF EXPOSURE

NEW YORK, March 8.—Following astounding revelations in the New York American, George W. Perkins, former vice-president of the New York Life Insurance Company, has sent his personal check for $54,609.09 to the New York Life Insurance Company, in satisfaction of the claim of that company.

The check is to make restitution to the New York Life, with interest, for $48,500 of the policyholders' funds confirmed in 1904 by Perkins, as fiduciary officer, to George B. Cortelyou, then chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Millions in Mail Subsidy.

The New York American has revealed how, ten months later, Mr. Cortelyou, as postmaster-general, awarded with the International Mercantile Marine Company, a British concern in which Mr. Perkins was a managing director, a contract for carrying mails in which Mr. Perkins and his business friends profited by nearly $5,000,000.

Here is Mr. Perkins's letter accompanying his check to "make good":

Mr. Alexander E. Orr, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, No. 346 Broadway, New York City:

Dear Sir—In 1904, at the request of the then president of the company, I advanced $48,500 as a payment on behalf of the New York Life Insurance Company to the Republican National Campaign Committee. I did this with the understanding with the president that I should be reimbursed by the company. Subsequently I was so reimbursed. The payment was made without any thought on the part of the president or myself of personal advantage, but solely in the belief that it was for the best and broadest interests of the policy-holders at home and abroad.

In dismissing the criminal proceedings instituted against me for accepting reimbursement the courts have intimated that the payment and therefore the reimbursement was not made for a proper purpose. I therefore return to the company the amount paid to me for the purposes hereinbefore mentioned by check for $54,609.09 to cover principal and interest. Very truly yours,

GEORGE W. PERKINS.

The revelations in the New York American concerning alleged graft in the British mail carrying concern supplied the missing link in the evidence against Mr. Perkins, and has so startled that individual that he is anxious to "come" to terms.

Claimed to Be Unselfish.

He has always asserted ever since the Armstrong committee began its inquiries that he had done with the money of the policy holders that he had used it in certain interests in the world and that he had given the money back and that it would extend them, but here comes the fact that the mail carrying concern in which he and his close friends were so heavily interested got a fat mail carrying contract which netted them millions in profit and that but ten months later Mr. Perkins had been so zealous about the interests of the policy holders in the New York Life.

The fact brought out by the Armstrong Committee, that the contribution was not accounted for in the report made by the New York Life to the Superintendent of Insurance, was believed by the committee to indicate that Mr. Perkins, in making the donation, realized fully not only that he was acting without authority, but that his act, if known to the policy holders and to the Superintendent of Insurance, would have at once led to a demand for restitution. The committee declared this belief in its report.

MAYOR "WISE" TO SALE; NEWS TO BOAT LINE

Merchants & Miners Company on the Buying End, Not in Market, Say Officials.

PLAN FIGHT ON MORSE

That the sale of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Company to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, exclusive announcement of which has been made by Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, is unknown to the president of the company, is revealed in a denial of the sale made in New York by President Whitney.

President Whitney says that not only has the line not been sold, but, furthermore, that it is not for sale. Other officials of the line are equally strong in denying the Mayor's exclusive bit of information.

Mayor Fitzgerald says that he received his information from President Mellen of the New Haven, the latter telling him that he was buying the line for the purpose of protecting Boston's commercial interests and offsetting the Morse steamship deals.

That instead of selling the line New Haven the Merchants & Miners is itself a purchaser, the property acquired being the Boston & Philadelphia Steamship Line. So the statement of Michael Jenkins of Baltimore, chairman of the board of directors of the Merchants & Miners, Mr. Jenkins added:

"The Merchants & Miners is not now and never has been for sale."

The control of the stock of the company is held by the Jenkins and other old Baltimore families.

Secretary N. W. James of the Merchants & Miners Company is equally strong in denying that it has been sold.

It is said that when the deal is completed for the sale of the Boston & Philadelphia Steamship Company, which is controlled by the New Haven Railroad, to the Merchants & Miners, the New Haven Railroad Company and the Merchants and Miners Company will work in unison to defeat Morse.

NICARAGUANS FLEE; HONDURAN ARMY PURSUES

SAN SALVADOR, March 8.—Another important engagement between Honduran and Nicaraguan troops is expected shortly following the arrival of advices to-day stating that President Bonilla of Honduras in person is leading an army numbering a scattered force of Nicaraguans.

To-day's dispatches put a different light on the fight near Namiaque. Yesterday it was reported the Nicaraguans had won a victory. An authentic message from Choluteca, sent by President Bonilla, shows the Hondurans really won a victory, drove the enemy from the field and captured a number of prisoners in addition to large quantities of arms and ammunition. Bonilla is to-day pursuing the remnants of the Nicaraguan force. As a Nicaraguan army is reported to be in that neighborhood a general fight is expected.

President Zelaya of Nicaragua has issued a violent proclamation against Honduras, Salvador and Salvador. The latter has consequently here has deserted Salvador in a time of stress so that it will be prepared to meet any emergency.

GRIPPE MAKES ARTIST SUICIDE

The mystery surrounding the suicide in Paris of Mrs. Nathalie Dole Latham, a celebrated artist, daughter of George Lockwood, now of New York, is cleared up to-day by a cablegram from the dead woman's maid. Mrs. Latham was very well known as a portrait painter. It was at first thought that she was a Boston woman, born in Orleans, Mass.

Her attendant cables to Mr. Lockwood that the beautiful artist had been suffering from an attack of the grippe, which is believed to have unbalanced her mind.

HONOR MGR. MAGENNIS ON HIS 64TH BIRTHDAY

JAMAICA PLAIN PASTOR OF ST. THOMAS'S CHURCH GIVEN NOTABLE TESTIMONIAL.

A notable testimonial was given to the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Thomas Magennis, of St. Thomas' Catholic Church, Jamaica Plain, in Curtis Hall, last night, by the people of his parish, in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The day also marked Mgr. Magennis' sixty-fourth birthday.

The hall was none too large to accommodate the throng that assembled to greet the priest who had presided over the church since its organization, thirty-eight years ago.

Mgr. Magennis has endeared himself to the community at large in which he lives, and a number of prominent citizens of the Protestant faith were present to express by their presence their appreciation of his worth.

Congratulated by the Pope.

Congratulations came from Pope Pius, who sent a cable message to Archbishop O'Connell, who forwarded it to Mgr. Magennis.

Letters of congratulation were read from Archbishop Williams, Archbishop O'Connell, Vicar General Byrne, Senator W. Murray Crane, Governor Guild and Mayor Fitzgerald.

A check for a substantial sum, contributed by Mgr. Magennis's parishioners, was presented to him.

The Monsignor was introduced by Patrick N. Keating, chairman of the meeting, in appreciative speech.

When Mgr. Magennis arose to respond he was received with enthusiastic handclapping. He said:

"It is evident that am in the hands of my friends. The applause you greet me with is rather embarrassing to me. For I realize that it is the work of the rank and file that has made possible the success of St. Thomas's parish. I have been blessed with the esteem, loyalty and love of the parishioners. Without their support nothing could have been accomplished.

Aided by His People.

"There are other men who are sixty-four years old. You come here unwittingly to applaud yourselves and your parents who made St. Thomas's possible. You nerved my arm and strengthened my heart to aid me in making St. Thomas's what it is to-day.

"Only eleven of the 110 priests who were ordained forty years ago in this diocese are alive to-day. There are now 850 junior priests in the diocese, and I must indeed be an old man.

"My reverend Archbishop has made me the permanent rector of St. Thomas's, and the Holy Father has honored me with the office of Monsignor, and that ought to satisfy the ambitions of any priest. I am proud to have been allowed to bear all of these things that have been said. I will take what I believe belongs to me, but much of the praise belongs to you. I thank you for this testimonial, and I pledge to you my earnest endeavor to work for you as I have in the past, and I ask you to stand by me as you have during the last thirty-eight years."

THINK HUB JAIL BREAKER HELD IN NEW JERSEY

PATERSON, N. J., March 18.—Edward Carr, arrested here for breaking into the Barnes Chemical Works, is believed by the local police to be Edward H. Carr, who is wanted in Boston for breaking jail a year ago last December with Charles Howard. Howard is the man who has just been informed that he had become heir to $80,000, left by a great-aunt in New York.

Carr was captured in a barber shop after he and a companion had dynamited the safe in the Barnes Chemical Works.

Edward Carr and Charles Howard were arrested in December, 1905, charged with a number of burglaries in the city and suburbs.

The men were arraigned before Judge Bolster in the Roxbury Court, and were remanded to the Charles Street Jail in default of heavy bail. Early one morning the officers of the jail discovered that both men had escaped. They sawed an opening in the steel bars which guarded the windows and made their way into the corridor. The corridor led room to a wooden lattice gate nine feet high, which they scaled, and then they cut their way through another heavy iron bar which guarded an outside window. Howard was located shortly after he got away.

AFTER ILLNESS

Medicines are no longer required, but the body needs all the nourishment it can be given without taxing the digestion in order to help Nature to help herself.

In Boston especially, but also all through New England, there has been a wave of illness of one kind or another.

The result is, that scattered through the country there are thousands and thousands of people weakened by illness who are trying to get back their strength. Their systems, pulled down by illness, are incapable of extracting sufficient nourishment from ordinary food to enable them to regain perfect health. In addition, through the very fact that they are weak, they are liable to contract more serious diseases which they would probably avoid if they were not in such a weakened condition.

Perfect health must be regained at all costs. How is it to be done? Nourish the body. Give Nature as much concentrated nourishment as possible. Nature will take the nourishment you give her and use it wherever it is most needed. Take

Scott's Emulsion

Nothing is so valuable to a person weakened by illness.

Illness has left the system weak. Medicine is not required because there is nothing that weakness to correct. Alcohol is useless because it only lifts up for a little while. Its effects are not permanent. There is no stability to the temporary strength it gives.

Scott's Emulsion, on the other hand, is permanent—absolutely free from stimulant—absolutely free from narcotic drugs. It feeds the system with purest nourishment in concentrated form.

Nature takes the material of which Scott's Emulsion is composed, and with it makes healthy fat and rich, red blood.

Scott's Emulsion gives Nature the material with which to put a sheath of fat round every nerve, and so permanently build up the shattered nervous system.

It is strength, nothing but strength in concentrated form. It is so easily digested that it is good for a tiny baby as well as for an adult. The only difference is in the size of the dose to be given.

For thirty years it has been used by the medical profession to give strength to people in a run-down condition. It is the greatest remedy in the world because it is right along the lines laid down by Nature herself.

The human body can cure itself of weakness if it has a sufficient reserve of strength to draw upon. That is why Scott's Emulsion is so good. It builds up the reserve strength. It slips right into the blood. It is more easily taken even than milk, and yet drop for drop, it is ten times as nourishing.

Why is Scott's Emulsion the greatest remedy in the world for consumption? Because the consumptive needs nourishment more than anything else and Scott's Emulsion is all nourishment.

Why is Scott's Emulsion so good for anaemic girls? Because the girl who is anaemic needs that food which is most easily converted into rich, red blood.

Why is Scott's Emulsion universally recommended by doctors throughout the world for babies? Because a baby's little body can only be benefited by food which is easily digested and yet the food must be the most nourishing possible because a baby is growing all the while and in proportion there is more demand upon its reserve force than upon that of an adult.

For thirty years Scott's Emulsion has been endorsed by the medical profession because of its value in all stages of weakness. Because of its purity and because of the fact that its standard of quality never changes, millions of people have been benefited by it, and it is as good to-day as it ever was.

No change in the label of Scott's Emulsion is required by the Pure Food Law, because Scott's Emulsion complies and always did comply with the standard set up by the United States Government.

It occupies a unique place as a food, a tonic, and a medicine. It is the greatest strength builder in the world. There is nothing like it for repairing damage to the system, whether slight or serious.

If you have been seriously ill, get back your health with Scott's Emulsion. If you have friends who have been ill, recommend Scott's Emulsion to them. It builds strength rapidly, it builds it easily, and it builds it permanently.

Invaluable for coughs and colds.

Begin its use to-day.

ENGLISH MINERS PRAISE

NOTE has been made in all newspapers of the huge bundle of letters with which Harry Thaw comes daily laden to his place in the courtroom. He gets these letters in the tombs a few minutes before it it is time to go into court and during the many hours when Jerome and the alienists have been going over and over old ground Thaw has been oblivious, or only half listening, the while with a led pencil he has pried open letters and has found comfort, encouragement and now and then amusement in their contents.

In response jo a request from me for a few of the letters that pleased him most out of the thousands he has received, the millionaire prisoner handed me four letters as being among the ones that had touched him most deeply.

"Thousands in England Pray for Thaw's Freedom."

The letters have come from all classes and conditions of men and women, but it will be seen that Thaw liked best those from humble folk, and in the four letters he gave me are two from veterans of the Civil War—a Confederate and a Union soldier. The letters follow:

"Feb. 20, 1907.

"Dear Sir—I, as one of the miners of Yorkshire, send you my heartfelt sympathy in the terrible position you are in at present. We very eagerly look out for the news of the trial as it appears in our English newspaper, and every line of news we read we snapped up. Some of us have daughters of our own, and we consider that the earth is now much sweeter and purer by the removal of such a scoundrel as this White, for man he could not have been.

"I may tell you I am voicing the opinion of thousands of my fellow countrymen who are looking forward to the time, now not far distant, when you will be restored to your wife and family—a wife whose sufferings must have been awful and one who is fighting a terrible fight against odds for your sake, in a true, noble spirit.

"Eagerly anticipating your restoration to freedom, I am, yours perfectly faithfully, WILLIAM HOLTE.

Mother of Daughters Asks God to Free Thaw.

"Scranton, Feb. 28, 1907.

"Dear Sir—With deepest sympathy I write to express my sorrow for you for the trouble you have. Dear Sir, I am a poor woman, the mother of several girls, the oldest one sixteen—working in a factory at $2 a week. My husband can never go to work again. We have nothing to fall back on, but if one of my girls could have the bad luck your dear wife had, and should tell me that some man ruined her in the way poor Evelyn was, and if he would offer me all the money in the world to make good the wrong he did, I would say 'No.' I would shoot him down like a dog. You don't know me, or ever saw me, nor I you, and I don't think I ever will, but I can't help feeling sorry for you. I have a great sorrow myself, but with all my trouble I pray to God for your release.

"On the thirteenth or this month, after dark, I knelt down in my garden under the open heavens, and with out stretched arms, I prayed for you. You know this is the time when Jesus went into the wilderness to pray and suffer and die on the cross, and you know how glorified he arose on Easter morning. I pray that you may be free and happy on this glorious day.

"Dear Friend, I know you have suffered. Such suffering is enough to make anyone insane. You righted your dear, young wife's wrong, for which you got credit. If you ever get someone and this letter is worth an answer, I will be very glad to hear from you. Keep up your courage, dear boy, and may your good angel watch over you and go before the Throne of God and pray for your deliverance out of the hands of the law. Excuse my writing and spelling, for many tears ran down my cheeks as I was writing this to you. A. G."

Voices Sympathy of 5,000 Old Soldiers at Home.

"National Soldiers' Home, Ohio:

"Dear Sir—Among the 5,000 old soldiers inmates of this central branch of Uncle Sam's homes, you have the undying sympathy of all, not only among the many old vets here from Pittsburg, but from all sections of the United States. The great majority here are fathers and grandfathers, and all know and appreciate the sacredness of married life and home, and all express approval of your action.

"Trusting you will be honorably discharged and returned to comfort your noble helpmate whom you so honorably defended, we join in offering prayers for the speedy deliverance you, no doubt, will receive, and that you may devote your life to the comfort of your wife and the defense and loving mother. H. J. MCGIVERN,

Confederate Veteran Hopes for Justice.

"My Dear Sir: After reading of the missiles of hell, dug out of its darkest corners, which have been relentlessly buried at you from the face and teeth, as well as, ears, of that polished lovelorn, your wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, by those whose duty it is under the law to do justice, I am, as a Confederate soldier, prompted to write to you.

"At the battle of Franklin, Tenn., on the 30th day of November, 1864, the Confederates, against great odds and breastworks, made a desperate charge. There, as a private, I followed a Confederate general when all the instruments of death which science or skill had been able to invent or make came on which and fast into our faces that it appeared impossible that one could even breathe without being struck. Walking into the jaws of hell, I believe, would have been a comparatively easy job to the one we had that evening.

"That brave Confederate general went out on ahead, calling back to his men to come on, until he and his horse were killed, practically astride of the enemy's breastworks. Then I heard a noble Federal colonel cry out: 'Show me the coward who shot that rebel general and I'll shoot him.' But such was war. The business of both sides on that occasion was to kill; the prevailing opinion is that it is the business of the courts and the officers to give and receive justice.

"Harry, the worst is over: you will be free!"

—Evelyn Thaw's greeting to Thaw in Tombs after mother testified.

Wife's Fidelity Worth More Than Jewels of World.

"Though the missiles of hell which have been hurled into Mrs. Thaw's face are of a different makeup than those facing the Confederates at Franklin, they are more deadly and calculated to do more injury, as at Franklin, death was the worst. She has come out of the fiery furnace unscathed, I believe, would have been a comparatively easy job to the one we had that evening.

"That brave Confederate general was worth more to me, her husband, than all the jewels of all the queens of the world. If they were recovered into money and the proceeds applied to educating women along this line,

"Seventy million citizens of this Republic say, as that brave and noble colonel of the United States Army did at Franklin, as to the shooting of such a fearless comrade as that Confederate general. He was a coward.

"So they say to any who would snarch or by any way harm others.

"Mrs. Thaw's ordeal has been as trying and hard in this trial as was the noble Confederate general's, so would only lay down his life if Franklin. She has been as brave and fearless to do her duty as he was there.

"CONFEDERATE SOLDIER."

MOTHER'S LOVE A BIG THAW ASSET

BY Dorothy Dix

Copyright, 1907, American-Journal-Examiner.

WHEN, on Wednesday, Mrs. William Thaw finished on the witness stand the brief and pathetic account of the attacks of melancholia from which her son suffered and of how—fearing for his reason if he was thwarted of his heart's desire—a reluctant consent had been wrung from her to his marriage with Evelyn Nesbit, she paused and hesitated when Mr. Delmas told her that she might go—that her ordeal was over.

The dismissal, so eagerly awaited by most witnesses and responded to with such alacrity left her with something untold that she was burning to tell. She rose from the chair, straightened her vigorous old shoulders, and, looking squarely into the many faces upturned to hers, said: "If it is permitted, I wish to say something. I desire to speak of my son's heredity."

With a hurried and almost frightened impetuosity Mr. Delmas courteously but finally checked the words upon her lips, and with a disappointed air she left the court room with her story still unuttered.

Mrs. Thaw Wanted to Deny Insanity Taint.

It was thought that she wished to make the plea of insanity doubly sure for her son by telling of the relatives that had writhed in epileptic fits, or add plausibility to the alienists' account of the brain storm that swept Harry Thaw irresistibly on to commit murder on the 25th of last June, by telling of other brain storms that had wrecked other members of her family and cast them ashore to become the flotsam and jetsam of madhouses.

The exact opposite of this was true. What Mrs. Thaw wished to do and was prevented from doing by her counsel was to deny that insanity is hereditary in her family and that tainted blood flows in her son's veins.

The pride of race runs strong in this old woman of real Scotch ancestry, and for the moment fealty to her house triumphed over even love for her child. She desires above all earthly things for him to be saved, but she wants it done by some other means than casting discredit upon her blood.

No matter what the consequences, she was ready to proclaim to all the world that Harry came of no tainted stock. She was even willing to risk the chair from which none arises alive to remove the stigma of congenital lunacy from her name.

Wished to Set Things Right for Other Childrens' Sake.

Just how she was going to do this, in view of all the evidence on the subject is not clear.

Perhaps she did not know herself. Perhaps, woman fashion, she was going to account for the mad uncle and nephew, of whom we have already heard, by some tender, pitiful evasion that women use when they speak of a loved one as "queer," "eccentric" or "nervous," rather than as the harsher word that described a fact that they will not admit even to themselves.

Another reason for Mrs. Thaw being anxious to make denial of the charge that there is insanity in her blood is for her other children's sake. Josiah and Edward Thaw are married to charming women. Mrs. Carnegie is the wife of a multimillionaire, the Countess of Yarmouth is prominent in London society.

If the curse of madness is in Harry's veins, it is equally in theirs, and it is a cause of pride in the living, as well as the dead, that made the old mother set his matter before the world in the light in which she sees it, and give all her strength to the attempt to close the door of the family closet upon whatever skeletons it may hold.

Chief of Mother's Reasons Was Pride.

But one thing is certain, Mrs. Thaw believes what she says when she denies that there is any hereditary taint of insanity in her family. If mad blood flowed there has been any who are not quite normal, she has never seen it in their eccentricities or double peculiarities that made her all the sweeter to think she was to her poor Harry. There is something fine in her effort to protect the memories of these men and women at such a crisis, for, whether she admits it or not, this persistent leaning toward madness plays a big part in her son's defense and acquittal.

It is a vital part of every one of the hypothetical questions put to the alienists, as indicating the trend of a mind by nature made so unstable that it was buffeted about in every wind of emotion. More than that, this familiar trick of the mind will have great weight with the jury in Harry Thaw, with the black drop of hereditary madness in his blood, and Harry Thaw coming out of cold, calm, hard-headed, clear-thinking ancestry, would not be dealt with alike.

But chief of all the reasons that made Mrs. Thaw anxious to tell the story of her boy's heredity was pride. That is her chief characteristic. She is proud of her wealth, proud of her station in Pittsburg society, proud of her pride, and it has been wormwood and gall to have to sit quietly by and see her family secrets pried into and pulled into the light, as if her son were a mere common criminal instead of a millionaire, and his family of no more importance than if he were a Bowery tough, sent up to be tried for some ordinary murder. Therefore, she wishes to put her interpretation upon them.

Mother Love at Once Her Weakness and Her Strength.

Her one weakness is her one strength—mother love. She has never been able to deny her children anything. That is that she robbed Harry of his one chance to have made something of himself. His father, an astute old man, who had piled up useless millions for his children's idleness, saw that, and left provisions in his will that Harry should show that he was fit to handle money before his estate was given to him. His mother could not bear that her darling should be denied anything he wanted, and so nullified that wise provision.

Perhaps not many mothers would have been wiser or stronger, under the circumstances, for it takes great courage to let a man with those we love and to withhold even the thing that will hurt from the child that cries for it. Harry Thaw's mother was not of the Spartan kind. She is only very loving and human and faithful, and her sins toward him have been those of omission and not commission.

And whatever unintentional wrong she may have done she has paid the more in tears and suffering during the time that her son has lain in prison, charged with murder.

THAW TRIAL LONGEST IN NEW YORK HISTORY

NEW YORK, March 8.—The trial of Harry K. Thaw for the killing of Stanford White will be the longest in the history of the State.

It is now forty-six days since the trial began, and the end is not in sight.

In the twenty-six and one-half actual court days, the official stenographers have taken down more than 800,000 words of evidence.

Jerome, it is known, will introduce many witnesses in rebuttal in an attempt to break down Evelyn's story.

GATES LOST $1,500,000

NEW YORK, March 8.—Wiseacres in Wall street declared to-day that John W. Gates had dropped $3,000,000 in the precipitous slump in stocks. Many others confirm the Street in the opinion that Gates' own predictions to the effect that he only got $2,000,000, but was a bull, were made for the use and benefit of the harsher word that described a fact the inside story vouched for by one who knows. Western operator is that he has already reduced his loss to about $1,500,000.

FEAR FLAMES, RIOT IN PRISON

OSSINING, N. Y., March 8.—A panic ensued among the convicts at the State prison during the night while a fire department and cabinet shop in the north yard. Fearing that they would use the flames as a trap, the prisoners began screaming and cursing, imploring that their cells be opened. Only the prompt action of the guards, threatening dark cells to those who persisted in causing the uproar, restored quiet.

MELLEN OPENS WAR ON MORSE IN PROVIDENCE

Wins First Engagement by Acquiring Controlling Interest in Merchants & Miners.

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, March 8.—The acquisition of a controlling interest in the Merchants & Miners' Transportation Company by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is believed to be the first move on the part of President Charles S. Mellen, of the New Haven road, to determine whether, as President Mellen has himself chosen to term it, "a large slice of Morse should be inside of Mellen, or a large slice of Mellen inside of Morse."

In steamship circles, it is believed to-day that President Mellen has opened the war with the best weapon at hand the M. & M. steamship line, which "Steam Engine" Morse is said to have had longing eyes for some time.

The M. & M. line admits, through Vice-President Ellerton P. Whitney of Baltimore, that the New Haven road has obtained "an interest" in the ocean chain of steamers and wharfages, but declares there has been no purchase.

By acquiring control of the M. & M. Company's wharf at this port, the New Haven road now controls all of the city's deep-water wharfage, extending from the lower anthracite coal pier on the Providence west shore clear around to Fox Point on the south.

A dispatch from Baltimore denies that the Merchants & Miners' Transportation Company has bought the Boston & Philadelphia Steamship line, popularly called the Winsor line.

TO FIGHT WHITE STAR'S CHANGE

LONDON, March 8.—Postmaster-General Buxton received a deputation of Irish members of Parliament and representatives of the corporations of Cork and the North of England, who called regarding the change of the calling port of the White Star Line steamships from Queenstown to Plymouth on their homeward journeys.

Mr. Buxton promised to communicate with the deputation who oppose the change, and promised that the matter would immediately do so he would make representations on the subject to the United States government. He pointed out, however, that he had no control over the homeward mails.

HOPE HOUSEKEEPER WILL TELL SECRETS OF MRS. EDDY'S HOME

Plaintiffs Send to Ottawa for Miss Shannon, Who Formerly Managed Pleasant View.

Was There When Glover Visited Mother and During Shake-Up Before Strang's Arrival.

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 8.—The active work of preparing the case that is to be brought against the advisers that enabled Mrs. Eddy to disinherit her adopted son Ge Glover, began today, when the plaintiffs sent a special messenger to Ottawa, Canada, to search for Miss M. S. Shannon, who formerly had charge of the household affairs of Pleasant View and the other estates of Pleasant View.

Miss M. S. Shannon was a housekeeper in the Eddy establishment for a term of years. She was in the household upon the occasion of the visit of Mr. Eddy's son to his mother. She is known to have been in close touch not only with Mrs. Eddy, but with many of those persons who visited Mrs. Eddy.

Since she left the house at Pleasant View it has been difficult to locate her. The attorneys for the plaintiffs in the litigation desire her testimony very much. They have been unable to get into direct communication with her by mail. Yesterday they learned that she is in Ottawa, Canada.

Want Her Testimony.

The messenger was instructed to advise Miss Shannon of the importance of her return to Concord for the purpose of giving testimony here and the hope that if possible, to come, if only for a conference. The attorneys want her testimony in court use, if they can get it; but if she will not consent to appear in court they want her, in any event, to supply them with information they can use in question ing other witnesses.

One of the most important cases in which information is to be sought from Miss Shannon can be put in the establishment of the truth concerning the shaking in the Eddy household which preceded the arrest of Strang and several others of those who are now upon the closest terms with the mistress of Pleasant View. Together with the attempt to secure the testimony of Miss Shannon, there was made a systematic canvass of those local sources from which the plaintiffs hope to secure evidence.

Hering and H. M. Baker, Mrs. Eddy's counsel, of the advisers of Mrs. Eddy, urged yesterday the continuance of the policy of silence which the defence has adopted.

Her Followers Anxious.

There is a stronger disposition on Mrs. Eddy's part than on the part of her advisers to take the lid off and do some talking.

Her advisers cling to their idea that it is better to let the plaintiffs do the conversational boners.

But many persons in Mrs. Eddy's church have written her, asking why she has not answered some of the allegations that the plaintiffs have made.

No communications are sent from Pleasant View to Boston by telephone now, not even by telegraph or mail.

Messengers are used, and the employment of messengers by the plaintiffs in the search for Miss Shannon makes the use of special messengers the usual thing for each side.

GREAT BABY CONTEST STIRS ALL BOSTON

Proud Father of One Little Winner Highly Treasures Prize for Beauty.

NOTED ARTISTS JUDGE

With his face wreathed in smiles and looking as though he had just heard the best piece of news in his life, the father of one of the pretty babies whose photograph was published in last Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN came into the BOSTON AMERICAN office yesterday.

"The judges in the baby contest among the first five of the prettiest babies of Greater Boston proved me none than I can tell you," he said.

"I always thought that my boy was a pretty baby, but I never allowed for a father's partiality in judging the child.

"But when the celebrated women artists, who are judging this contest, declare that your child is worthy of position in such a competition as is now being conducted by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, it makes any parent feel mighty proud, I can tell you."

Enthusiasm Runs High.

When I got that order for $10 worth of photographs of my baby boy I was the proudest man you ever saw. I wouldn't take $100 for that order, I assure you. It's worth a big check to me, that's all. I was never more pleased in my life."

Enthusiasm in the contest to determine who has the prettiest baby in Greater Boston, and to find out whether the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN proposes to spend $5,000, is gaining each day. Photographs of babies are coming in by the basketful every day.

Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN is to contain the names, ages and addresses of every baby whose photograph has been received by the Baby Contest Editor since the race was started.

Next Sunday's AMERICAN will also contain the names of those babies who win this week's position in the race.

Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will also contain the names of those babies who win this week's position in the race.

May Have to Wait Turn.

The fact that the picture of your own baby did not appear in last week's SUNDAY AMERICAN or may possibly not appear in next Sunday's paper as a prize winner, should not be any discouragement. There have been received so many photographs now, that pictures of equally worthy of place among the five published each Sunday may have to wait their turn. Babies of Greater Boston only are eligible.

The name and age of the child and the name and address of a parent or guardian should be written upon the back of each photograph.

LEAGUE CALLS ON STATE TO BREAK TRUST GRIP

LEADERS FIGHT AT STATE HOUSE FOR BILL TO END STANDARD OIL DISCRIMINATION.

Why has the Standard Oil Company made no visible appearance against the Griswold anti-monopoly bill on Beacon Hill? Why was Standard Oil unrepresented visibly yesterday, when Thomas L. Hisgen told the Committee on Mercantile Affairs of the fight that the Four Brothers Oil Company has been making against the Trust in and around Springfield?

These and similar questions legislators on the hill are asking one another today.

The hearing on anti-monopoly bills continued practically the entire day. Hon. William N. Osgood of Lowell, president of the Independence League, appeared for the Griswold bill in behalf of the People's Lobby. Lawyer H. B. Dow of North Andover and the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Haverhill also favored legislation.

Met Trust at Own Game.

Mr. Hisgen told the committee how he and his brothers had succeeded in building up a business in axle grease, which, in 1898, attracted the greed of the Standard Oil. The Standard made a bid for the Hisgen business and was turned down. Then the Standard went to its customers and told them that if they continued to handle the Hisgen product they must expect no more oil.

The Hisgens immediately erected oil tanks around Albany and in Western Massachusetts and started oil wagons. They had decided to meet the gigantic oil company at its own game.

"But, understand me, gentlemen of the committee, Mr. Hisgen said frankly, 'we do not seek this legislation for any benefit that may come to us. Pass this bill and we will be glad to give up the oil business and leave the field to other independents. We are axle grease men, and we have no great liking for anything else.

"When we began, the Trust met us by reducing its price in that section from 12½ cents to 9 cents, and there has been a subsequent reduction to 7 cents. We followed them as far as 7½ cents, at wholesale, but there we had to stop. We told our customers the exact situation, and they have nobly stood by us, well knowing that our departure from the field can mean nothing less than a boost to old prices by Standard Oil. I believe this loyalty shows plainly the great popular sentiment against the Trust.

Has Saved Consumers $1,000,000.

"Kansas already has a law identical with the bill that Mr. Griswold offers you. Oil is five cents a gallon cheaper in Kansas than anywhere else in the Union.

"I could talk to you for an hour about the persecution and petty annoyance that we have been subjected to," he said.

"By close calculation, I believe we have saved $1,000,000 a year to the consumers of oil in Massachusetts."

The Griswold bill defines guilty of "unfair discrimination" anyone engaged in the production or sale of any commodity in commerce who "intentionally and for the purpose of destroying the business of a competitor in any locality" discriminates by selling for less in that community than elsewhere. The penalty is made a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

"This bill," said Hon. William N. Osgood of the Independence League, "is not merely of a departure in the policy of legislation in this State. We already have a law prohibiting any person from making it a condition when selling goods to another that no goods shall be purchased of others.

"That law applies to a discrimination in favor of a particular firm or corporation. The proposed law is merely an extension of this law, so as to apply to places; that no unfair discrimination in regard to prices of goods, wares and merchandise shall be made in one locality over that charged in another locality.

Assists Fair Competition.

"It merely seeks to assist fair competition. It is against monopoly and unfair restraint and the destruction of normal trade.

"And the new law would be strictly constitutional, as will be seen by examining the opinion of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth in the prosecution of the Tobacco Trust. In the last State report there is also an opinion of the Supreme Court, dealing with the constitutional aspects of the case, in the 100th Massachusetts report."

WOULDN'T WED DOEHME, SAYS MISS FARRAR

Beautiful Singer Declares Report of Engagement Plot to Injure Her.

BAMES JEALOUS ONES

NEW YORK, March 8.—A report was circulated about the Metropolitan Opera House and elsewhere yesterday that Miss Geraldine Farrar, the beautiful Massachusetts girl, had become engaged to marry Zoltan Doehme, divorced husband of Mme. Lillian Nordica. It was so prominent that the prima donna, in her apartments in the Hotel Netherland, declared some enemy was seeking to injure her.

The young American exclaimed a flat that she would have to leave the country if she were unable to close the mouths of her traducers.

Jealousy, She Says.

"I have been made miserable by the wretched jealousy on the part of certain persons who are trying to injure me," said Miss Farrar.

"As for that man, Doehme, I would not marry him if he were the only man on earth. I am engaged to no one. When I am I shall be willing to stand for it, but not until I am. Doehme, pooh.

Miss Farrar said that her acquaintance with Mr. Doehme was of the most casual sort, that she had met him four years ago, when she was introduced to him by Nordica, then his wife.

"It is absurd to say that Zoltan Doehme is in this country," she added. "For only ten days ago I heard from a friend abroad that he was in Munich, far away. Here, however, it would be all the same to me, as he is nothing and never has been anything to me."

MISSING HUB MAN IS IN N.Y.

NEW YORK, March 8.—William Chester Van Brunt, a reputed Harvard student, who disappeared so mysteriously, has been found and is now at the apartments of his doctor, Mrs. Susanne Wright, in River side Drive.

His relatives had shown much anxiety concerning him, for he had in his possession the proceeds of a $1,200 check which his elder had given to him. Van Brunt had made the acquaintance of a "Mr. Jackson," who, through the accidental dropping of a telegram, it was learned, was a friend of Thomas W. Lawson of Boston.

William Chester Van Brunt is not known as Harvard and is a stranger to Thomas W. Lawson as well.

ALIMONY FOR HARVARD'S ELOPING "COLLEGE WIDOW"

Bad End in Court of Romance of William R. Myers and Lillian Bouche.

Non-Support Plea Secures for Her $5 Weekly From Delinquent Husband.

"A College Widow" from Harvard town faced a Philadelphia Judge yesterday with a tale of withered matrimonial hope which touched the magistrate's heart and also a delinquent husband's pocket.

The court scene was a sad end of a Harvard romance whereby a student wed too soon. He had to forsake when he took himself a wife. The marriage occurred in Providence in May last, a month before William R. Myers was to graduate, and the groom's family is blamed for his sudden separation from beautiful Lillian Bouche, daughter of a Cambridge florist.

Must Pay Alimony.

It is said that young Myers promised his bride that he would send for her as soon as he made a home in Philadelphia. But she got no such encouraging word.

After nine months had sped she went to Philadelphia without a summons from her husband and had him brought to face her in a desertion court. The judge heard the fair Cambridge girl's story and looked severely at the fluent spieler who had so signally failed to "love, cherish and protect."

"You must pay $5 a week towards your wife's support," said the judge, if young Myers, who is now working in a broker's office, does not do this he will be in contempt.

Whispered Loving Words.

It is said that when Mrs. Myers first went to Philadelphia her husband's family refused to receive her, but that he embraced her, and, whispering words of love and encouragement for the future into her trusting ears, got her to go back to Cambridge.

She was living with her parents at No. 13 Saville street when she was courted by Myers. She was known far and wide as one of the prettiest girls in the University city. She was fondly known as "the college widow." Many a student was her suitor, but it was Myers only who won her affections.

"DON'T GIVE TIME FOR AN IMMUNITY BATH"

DISTRICT ATTORNEY PLEADS FOR SPEEDY TRIAL OF LEGISLATOR LAMOUREUX.

"The reason I ask for a speedy trial and that the case be assigned for next Monday is this: I don't propose, if I can help it, to let any more criminals escape justice by giving them time to take the 'Immunity Bath' at the State House. They did it at the time of the Legislative investigation last year. They did it within two weeks when, after charges had been made, Sheriff Seavey and fifteen or twenty of his officers rushed up to the State House and got a 'bath' before I could present my evidence to the Grand Jury. Despite what the Court says, that the Bluco is on the Legislature, allow me to state that in my opinion the responsibility rests jointly upon the Court and the District Attorney to see that men and bribers do not escape justice as I stand ready to do my part."

District Attorney Moran, his voice so feeble that it sounded scarcely audible, but with his ears extended and with great earnestness delivered the above broadside at Judge Brown, as the former Municipal Court judge raised to the Superior Bench in the criminal session yesterday afternoon.

It was but a portion of a heated argument between the District Attorney and the Court over the matter of arranging for a speedy trial of Representative Lamoureux, who had been secretly indicted for accepting bribe money in the case of the Anti-Shoe Machinery Bill at the State House in which one Editor McMasters appears as the principal government witness.

"Reason Not Good," Says Judge.

Lamoureux was arraigned, pleaded not guilty, and his bondsmen furnished sufficient surety; when Assistant District Attorney Dwyer arose and buried a bomb into the proceedings by asking that the case be assigned for trial on Monday next.

"Why such haste?" inquired Judge Brown.

"Under a certain section of our law, which renders immune persons testifying before a Legislative committee regarding crime," replied the Assistant District Attorney.

"I don't deem that a good reason," said Judge Brown.

District Attorney Moran, who was seated at the table of the prosecuting attorney, immediately arose, unable to control his feelings, and proceeded to address the Court.

"I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that a judge who has been sitting on this bench has read that as one case to be tried, even though he has been indicted by the Grand Jury, if he has testified before the Legislative committee and obtained a 'bath.'

"Is that your reason for asking that the case be assigned for next Monday?" asked the Court.

"It is," replied Moran.

"I don't see any reason for granting any such request," ruled Judge Brown promptly. "Unless the counsel for the defense agrees."

"Not sufficient reason?" said Moran. "Why, it is the duty of the Court and the District Attorney to see that those under indictment are brought to trial and justice meted out."

"If the Legislature sees fit to allow this defendant to appear and testify, thereby rendering him immune, that is their business; not mine," said Judge Brown.

"I deem it the duty of the Court and District Attorney to see that justice prevails," retorted Moran with asperity.

"If the Court refuses to assign the case for next week or next Monday, I serve notice on his counsel here, that I shall put the case down for trial to-morrow after noon and I hereby notify him to be ready," ejaculated Moran, as he turned his ex cited arm and index finger towards Senator Cassidy, who was representing the defendant.

"That is unreasonable," broke in Judge Brown, as Senator Cassidy arose to oppose such a move.

"It appears to me that the Court has this matter under consideration, not the District Attorney," the latter official declared Cassidy, with much feeling. "I am not ready for trial next week, but it appears to me that this is undue haste. Owing to my duties it will be necessary to call in another counsel to conduct the case and prepare it for trial and that will take time."

"Will you agree to have the case assigned for next week. Will you agree to have the Judge assign the case for trial next Thursday?" broke in Moran.

"I am not prepared to so state, but I think that I can make a satisfactory arrangement with the District Attorney for a speedy trial," retorted Cassidy.

"Set your date," cried Moran to Cassidy, but the latter was obdurate and the Court sided with the defense and left the matter with the counsel to determine when the case shall be tried.

"If this case is not set down for trial," declared Moran to the Court, "it cannot be reached for three weeks, until the jail cases have been disposed of, and in the meantime the Legislature is in a position to deliver one of its 'Immunity Baths.'"

$42,000 PLEDGED TO RAISE DEBTS

The campaign for the removal of the indebtedness of the Franklin Square House was interrupted yesterday by the recent illness of Colonel Higginson, president of the corporation, but he has fully recovered and has returned to work after securing the second $10,000 before the summer vacation. He reports to-day pledges of $27,000 from E. H. Cole of New York, making a total of $42,000 already pledged.

HUB MAN SUES N. Y. RAILWAYS FOR $10,000,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Declaring that every trolley line in the city of New York has infringed on his patented invention by the use of the electric systems each company is now using, George Dexter Burton, president of the Burton Electrical Smelting Company of the 185 Summer street, Boston, has brought suit against the railways to recover $10,000,000 damages. The defendants in the suit are the New York City Railway, the Metropolitan Street Railway, the Interborough Rapid Transit and the Metropolitan Securities companies.

The Boston man declares that he will seek an injunction restraining the companies from further using the system he claims to own. The railway companies sued have denied that the systems that they are now employing are infringements on any existing patents.

Mr. Burton is a resident of New Ipswich, N. H. He lives at the New England House when in Boston.

FIRST YIDDISH WEEKLY IS OUT

Boston now has a Yiddish weekly and the first ever published in New England. It is the Yiddish Advocate. Its mission is to teach the large number of Jewish citizens who do not read English at all or, in any event, not fluently, to advocate their cause and aid them in becoming sturdy Americans. There are, it is estimated, nearly 70,000 Hebrews in Greater Boston. Thousands of them are not long in the United States, and they form a big constituency for any newspaper which can reach them in their native dialect.

W. L. DOUGLAS

BEST IN THE WORLD $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

Do you wear W. L. Douglas shoes? If not, I believe I can give you good and sufficient reasons why it would pay you to wear them.

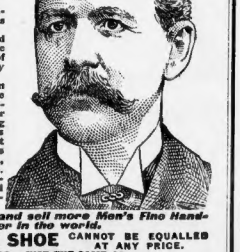
I give the wearer the benefit of my thorough and practical knowledge of shoemaking, which has extended over fifty years.

I give the wearer the benefit of my exclusive method of tanning the bottom soles which makes them more flexible and gives longer wear than any other sole leather produced in this country.

As I am the largest manufacturer of men's fine Hand-Sewed Process shoes in the world, it is necessary for me to purchase leather and other materials in enormous quantities; the benefit of the very low prices I obtain I give to the wearer in superior quality over other makes.

I give the wearer the benefit of the most complete organization of superintendents, foremen and skilled shoemakers, who receive the highest wages paid in the shoe industry, and whose workmanship cannot be excelled. The selection of the leathers and other materials for each part of the shoe and every detail of the making is looked after and watched over by these expert men, regardless of time or expense. I will take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

I receive thousands of unsolicited testimonials every year, giving the experience of those who, after many years of trial, have found W. L. Douglas shoes to be the best produced for the price. A fac simile of their original letters will be mailed you free for the asking.



These are a few of the reasons why I make and sell more Men's Fine Hand-Sewed Process Shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

W. L. DOUGLAS $4.00 GILT EDGE SHOE CANNOT BE EQUALLED AT ANY PRICE.

DEMOCRATS TO GIVE DINNER TO BRYAN MARCH 15

A meeting of the committee appointed by Chairman Feeney to arrange for the dinner to be given William Jennings Bryan, which was voted by the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee last Saturday, has decided to hold the dinner at the Quincy House, March 15, at 7 o'clock.

As many applications have already been received by the committee for tickets, it has been determined to assign to each member of the State Committee four tickets, if notice is received on or before Monday, March 11, by the secretary, Andrew H. Peters, at the Quincy House, Boston.

The committee has authorized the secretary to dispose of the balance of the tickets not taken by the members of the State Committee. Anyone desiring to attend the dinner may make application to the secretary at the Quincy House. The price of the tickets has been fixed at $2.00.

VT. BUSINESS MAN DIES.

CASTLETON, Vt., March 8.—Simon B. Sargent, a well-known business man, died at his home here yesterday.

Simply Swallow

Many Eat as Though They Were Blind and Their Tongues Cut Out.

Dyspepsia is built on confidence—too much confidence in the ability of your stomach to digest anything and everything you put into it.

In this age we have developed speed in every line of action, and we have also developed speed in mastication.

We don't take time to eat right, and sometimes we do not eat the right kind of food. Sometimes we carry our business to our meals and as a result eat mechanically. We eat as though we were blind and our tongues cut out. We simply swallow.

The result is that the food we eat is half chewed, and lies like a lump of lead on the stomach.

You may deny to yourself that you abuse your stomach, but when you get a bloary feeling, you can't deny you've got it.

When you get brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloating, aversion to food, loss of appetite, belching and other kindred ailments, there is not much use asking yourself, for the time being, why you suffer. The fact is you've got these ailments and the question of the hour is how to get rid of them at once, so that at your next meal you may be able to sit down and look at your meal straight in the face—with a keen appetite and a smile, and enjoy thoroughly everything you eat.

Just one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest an ordinary meal, without the help of the stomach. One ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food. The strongest stomach couldn't do the work any better than one of these wonderful little Tablets can do it.

Each tablet contains the strongest digestive agents it is possible to obtain.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a patent medicine. We come out and say just what is in them—hydrastis, golden seal, lactose and aseptic pepsin. They are recommended by 40,000 licensed physicians in the United States and Canada.

And they are recommended by everyone who uses them—they can't help it, for they immediately invigorate the stomach by letting it take a rest; they strengthen the gastric juice and cause the appetite to become keen and regular.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will surely destroy dyspepsia, brash, belching, that "lump of lead" feeling, burning sensations, indigestion, loss of appetite, and aversion to food.

Have Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets handy where you can take one or two after each meal. Then you will know what a blessing it is to have a good appetite and to get all the good possible out of everything you eat. You'll feel rosy and sweet. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store on earth, 50c.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 85 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

500 REALTY MEN DINE TO BOOM NEW EXCHANGE

SPEAKERS LAUD MOVEMENT TO HELP REAL ESTATE INTERESTS OF COMMONWEALTH.

Boston's real estate interests received a tremendous boom last night, when a gathering of 500 representatives of public-spirited business men—the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange—met at the American House and celebrated the recent incorporation under the laws of the Commonwealth by a banquet as bountiful as it was merry.

Landlords and tenants, trustees and agents, investors, conveyancers and assessors, architects, builders and contractors, lawyers and brokers, doctors, politicians and newspaper men—one of them, representing allied interests that may be depended upon to boost, enhance, stimulate activity and increase public appreciation of real estate values—were there to the feast by invitation and rejoiced with the officers and directors of the new exchange.

The more distinguished of the guests, such as ex-Governor Brackett and Mayor Fitzgerald, sat at the head table together on the platform, and Frederick O. Woodruff, president; Edward T. Harrington, secretary; Charles S. Jenkins, treasurer; view-presidents, William J. Mendelsohn and Albert Taber, and Alfred Hodges, Jr., directors, Robert S. Fitch, Frank M. Frost, Albert Geiger, E. Harry R. Jones, Charles F. Jennings, Charles S. Jenkins, William J. McDonald, Edward F. Bigelow, Ellis H. Newton, Jr., Frank H. Partington, Lorenzo D. Towle, Arthur H. Wellington, Alfred A. Whittier, Edward H. Wiggin and George Adams Woods.

Charles E. Jennings, assisted by Francis W. Whittier, who is also a director, and Robert J. Chute, who is a literary man, acted as toastmaster of the occasion and admirably filled at home.

Enthusiastic delegations from all the big local real estate offices were there in abundance. They represented the Edward T. Harrington Company, Henry W. Savage, Arnold Brooks & Sons, C. Ellerton Jordan, F. Foxcroft, the Chapin Farm Agency, E. G. Bradshaw & Co., F. S. Riley & Co., W. C. Smith and P. E. Leland.

President Woodruff began the speech-making. He said in part:

"A demand for some strong movement in behalf of the real estate interests of the Commonwealth seemed to be made available to form the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

"The exchange is broad enough to cover the whole Commonwealth and expects through its large membership and by the distribution of literature and other educational methods to become a powerful influence for good.

"We have already admitted a large membership from Boston, Cambridge and neighboring cities and towns, and are now considering the formation of branches in different parts of the Commonwealth, as called for by the interest of every person, landlord and tenant, investor and broker, to become a member.

"I want to refer to a few practical matters that have been called to our attention. The first is legislation. Most of you will admit that Boston is legislated almost to death. Very little good legislation for real estate can be had in that direction, for there are now at least seven or eight legislative committees detrimental to real estate laws. You should enter your protest, as we propose to do through our members and our officers.

A Question of Mortgages.

"Another question affecting the investor, builder and broker is the placing of mortgages. We know it is almost impossible to find mortgage money in Boston, no matter how good the security. There are always remedies for existing evils. Now we look to the initiative in reference to mortgages and passed a law compelling insurance companies doing business within that State to invest a certain percentage of their premiums in mortgages, with the result that it is now comparatively easy to get mortgage money.

"There are between thirty and fifty millions of dollars paid into the life insurance companies in Massachusetts in policy holders every year. Why should not these companies be compelled to invest a certain percentage of these premiums in mortgages in Massachusetts? And when they be depended upon to invest not only the Massachusetts companies, but the New York Life, the Mutual Life and the Equitable Life and the Prudential Life.

"We also believe that it is in the interest of the State that the savings banks be compelled by law to loan a certain percentage of their deposits on mortgages instead of lending on collaterals, at from 6 to 10 per cent., that the stock market can receive proper support."

Many Important Questions.

"No doubt many of the Massachusetts insurance companies and savings banks will reply that from 5½ to 5½ per cent. of their investments are in mortgages. This may be so, but they are mortgages written several years ago. We are not finding fault with what they did up to two years ago. We are finding fault with what they have not done in the last two years.

"Other important questions to be considered are the present method of selling real estate for taxes, the present mode of conveyancing, the present laws distributing the taxation of real estate, more equitable laws governing capital and labor, and the licensing of real estate brokers in Massachusetts."

John F. Leahy, the next speaker, said that Massachusetts was considerably behind many of the younger States in its laws and practices affecting realty. The present method of selling real estate for taxes was unnecessary, he argued, the present laws distributing the taxation on real estate were inequitable, and in some cases of doubtful legality. Individuals suffered because they could not afford the expense of securing decisions for their personal benefit. These were some of the evils which led up the formation of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange. The plan of the new exchange was built on broad lines and membership was open to every person interested. The exchange was intended solely for the public benefit and not to serve individuals. Mr. Leahy told the audience that if the Park Square station of the elevated road is built, it will be taken by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, and the Park Square station is surely going to be opened up length on the line of Robert Emmet.

"The example that he set," said he, "is a heritage which every Irishman cherishes. No other race, no other people, can show the wonderful lesson of fearlessness which the Irish people ever held up to an amazed world.

"So great and rapid has our stride been that we find leaders in many forms of life anxious and willing to proclaim to the world their pride in the Irish blood in their veins, from President Roosevelt and Speaker Cannon down to the supposed Puritan aristocracy of Boston."

STEPHENSON LIKELY TO SUCCEED SPOONER

MILWAUKEE, March 8.—Isaac Stephenson, of Marinette, multi-millionaire lumberman and manufacturer, and financial backer of Senator Robert M. La Follette, intends to have the leader's track in the race for the toga which Senator John C. Spooner will lay aside on May 1.

MANAGER DINES O'CONNELL IS METCALF MEN PROUD OF IRISH

Manager Frank Davidson of the Theodore Metcalf Company entertained employees of that concern's Tremont street and Copley square stores and wholesale department at a dinner in the Epicure in Hayward place last night.

After dinner there was a discussion of "The Prescription Department and Its Difficulties," which was opened by Frank Montgomery, assistant treasurer of the Tremont street store, who told many interesting things in connection with the history of the Metcalf prescription department. The original prescriptions are preserved in fully volumes and extend back a great many years. Among these prescriptions will be found the names of the most distinguished physicians in the country, and the study of compounding the science of medicine for the past fifty years may be traced from these prescriptions. Over a million and a half of them have been put away in the Metcalf stores.

Henry H. Bartholomew, Manager David son and Mr. McDonald of the Tremont street store were among the other speakers on this topic. Suggestions on the way advertising may be backed up by the work of the salesmen were made by F. G. Perine of the F. F. O'Keefe advertising agency, 148 Tremont street.

$1,250,000 ADDITION TO STATE HOUSE

An extension to the State House, to cost a million and a quarter dollars and to cover nearly half a block of land directly in the rear of the State Capitol, was favorably voted yesterday afternoon by the committee on State House.

The new extension will face on Derne street, exactly at the rear of the State house, and connections in terms of an overhead passageway and a subway will be made. The extension will run nearly to Cambridge street and will take in Joseph and Hancock streets. The new structure will be of eight stories.

In this extension it is proposed to house all the State departments, except the governor and his executive officers, who will remain in the present quarters in other parts of the building, and also to give the Supreme court in Massachusetts an abiding place.

BODY SEIZED AT THE EDGE OF THE GRAVE

HARRISBURG, March 8.—Just as the body of William Neilhenny of New Ringgold was to be lowered into a grave in Fedora's Church Cemetery, near Ringgold, the services were stopped by the appearance of a man of the deceased accompanied by Harrisburg undertakers, who came papers to claim the body.

PARALYZED RUNNING TO FIRE

ALTOONA, Pa., March 8.—W. W. Reading of Dixon, Ill., aged seventy, a Civil War veteran, while running to a fire here was paralyzed and fell unconscious on the street. He may die.

MAGNET HOLDS NEEDLE FROM WOMAN'S HEART

NEW YORK, March 8.—Close to Mrs. Mary Dressler's heart, touching it so nearly that at every beat it nearly scratches the organ, lies a needle, which is kept from ending the life of the woman only by the power of a huge magnet. Mrs. Dressler is in Bellevue Hospital, where to-day the battle between the needle and the magnet was being waged.

Mrs. Dressler's side. Exact measurements show that the needle has been drawn a little way out of the heart, but it is still so close to the heart that any excitement which would set the organ palpitating might force it against the needle and death would result.

TWO WOMEN BURNED IN KALAMAZOO FIRE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 8.—Fire in the Hotel Balch block to-day damaged the block and destroyed two buildings. Norah Spouse and Nannie Karnes, chambermaids are missing. The loss is $75,000.

CATCH BIG BURGLAR IN POLITICIAN'S HOME

NEW YORK, March 8.—The home of John Fox, president of the Democratic Club at No. 10 East Fiftieth street, was entered by a giant burglar just before dawn to-day. He was captured only after he had given battle to four policemen, following all of them at various times with a large jimmy he used as a club.

BLAMES N. Y. CENTRAL R. R.

OSSINING, N. Y., March 8.—Officials of the New York Central railroad are blamed for the Montreal train wreck, when two trainmen were killed. Coroner Squire's report censures the railroad management.

TO SHOW PICTURES DURING HIS SERMON.

Rev. William J. Ennis, S. J., of Boston College, will introduce to the people of Somerville a novelty in preaching in a "picture sermon," which he will deliver in the hall of St. Joseph's Parochial School, Union square, tonight. His subject will be "The Life of Christ," which he will illustrate with a large number of realistic colored stereopticon views.

TO PROHIBIT REBATING.

CONCORD, N. H., March 8.—An act to prohibit unfair commercial discrimination and rebating between different sections of the State has been reported to the Legislature.

PURE DRUGS ACT
June 30, 1906
In Effect January 1, 1907
A GOOD LAW

We endorse the Pure Drug Law, because we have always believed in its principles, and because it means that the American people will find the strong arm of the Government protecting them from RANK FAKES, IMITATIONS AND SUBSTITUTES made of adulterated, impure, worthless and even dangerous drugs.

This sort of thing has been an imposition, fraud and crime against the People, as well as against the responsible manufacturers of honest, reliable remedies, and it was high time for it to be stopped. Misrepresentation and substitution of "something just as good" will now be done away with.

The principles of the Food and Drugs Act have been always favored by conscientious and honorable manufacturers, who recognized that Purity and Quality alone could permanently secure the favor of the nation.

So the makers of Cascarets Candy Cathartic recognized the great principles of PURITY, QUALITY and MEDICINAL MERIT when the first tablet was made, over eleven years ago, and have adhered to them ever since.

Cascarets stand alone on their record, of having gained in that short period of time the friendship, confidence and patronage of millions of people, who are now buying Cascarets at the rate of over a MILLION BOXES A MONTH,—the largest sale of any Bowel Medicine in all the world.

We endorse the Pure Drug Law.

It suits us, because we have always stood before our friends unafraid and clear of conscience, made our contracts good to every one, and in the conduct of our business, had the good fortune to help hundreds of thousands of our fellow-citizens back to health and life.

We have no reason to hesitate, and so we do not hesitate, to recommend Cascarets to all sufferers from Constipation and all complications arising therefrom. Also any other diseases of the food-canal. We are advertised by our loving friends and wherever the American people pass judgment in favor of an article after over ten years of investigation, trial and test,—their verdict speaks for itself.

The great merit of Cascarets, however, is that of being a positive and reliable preventive of disease. The most important function of the human body is to keep its digestive channels and passages, with over thirty-six feet of bowels, strictly clean and disinfected, so that natural operations can take place in a natural manner, and the growth and activity of disease germs can be prevented.

A Cascaret at night before "turning in" will keep your Bowels regular, and your whole digestive canal wholesome, pure and normally active.

No matter what you have been taking, buy a little 10c. box TODAY at your own druggist, and let the results tell their own story. It means a lot of health and comfort in store for you. 761

WOULD MAKE BABY DRUNKARD, CRIES MOTHER

Declares in Court Husband Said He Would; Gave Beer to Six-Months-Old Boy.

ASKS CUSTODY OF CHILD

The startling charge by a mother that her husband had given beer to his six-months-old son in a barroom was made yesterday in the Probate Court at East Cambridge before Judge McIntyre in the fight between Mr. and Mrs. Haroulion Johnston for the custody of the child, who is now five years old.

"I'm going to make a drunkard out of him like his father," are the words which Mrs. Johnston alleges her husband said at the time. Thomas Gaul, a bartender in a Barre hotel, deposed that he saw the father let the baby sip ale out of the glass.

The Johnstons were married about eight years ago. They separated last June. Mrs. Johnston now lives at No. 33 Pearl street, Cambridgeport, and her husband at No. 26 Dartmouth street, Boston. Little Reginald is now with his father, but Mrs. Johnston asks custody, charging that the father is not a fit custodian, as he drinks to excess, she says. This the boy's father denies.

In the deposition of Mrs. William Petrie of No. 17 Academy street, she declares that she knew of the father giving the boy beer when he was only six months old.

"Why did you give that child beer?" she asked the father.

"Because baby likes it," she says Johnston replied, indignantly.

Johnston's brother testified that Mrs. Johnston herself drank blackberry cordial that he had seen the mother give the child liquor.

Johnston is thirty-three years old and has worked as a granite cutter and as a machinist.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

Word comes from Chicago to the effect that Cornelius P. Shea of Boston has been asked by the executive committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to resign the presidency of that organization. President Shea, with other officials of the teamsters, has been twice tried in the Chicago courts within the past three months upon charges of conspiracy. The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury. At the second trial Shea and his co-defendants were acquitted. Notwithstanding the results of proceedings against Shea, it is said that the executive committee of the Brotherhood believes that his usefulness at the head of the organization has been greatly impaired by the stories that grew out of the trials. It is for this reason that he has been asked to retire from the presidency.

President Shea is a member of Boston Sand and Tip Cart Teamsters' Union No. 191. He is expected to arrive in this city next week for a short visit.

Advance notices of labor union meetings which are to be held on Sunday should reach the Labor Editor not later than Friday night to insure their insertion in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

EXHIBIT OF UNION LABELS.

The cigarmakers, printers, hatters and the other labor unions of Greater Boston that have labels are to take part in the trade union display at the industrial exhibit to be held the week of April 1 in Mechanical Hall. The Boston Central Labor Union has voted to join in the plan. Among the many organizations interested in the exhibits are the Boston Association for the Relief and Control of Tuberculosis, Massachusetts Consumers' League, Woman's Trade Union League, Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, Boston Trade School for Girls, Industrial Committee of the Twentieth Century Club, North Bennet Street Industrial School, Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, Massachusetts State Board of Health and the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics of Labor.

STONE MASONS' DELEGATES.

Stone Masons' Union No. 9 elected Patrick J. Walsh delegate to the State conference of bricklayers, stone masons and plasterers to be held next Monday and Tuesday at Fitchburg. The following were elected delegates to the Boston Central Labor Union: John Scully, John J. Cronin, Patrick J. Walsh, John C. Collins, Alphonsus Lord, Harry McAfee, Michael W. Collins, John J. Ryan and Alexander Chisholm.

BOOK AND JOB MEN MEET.

Important matters will be discussed at to-night's meeting of the Book and Job Branch of the Boston Typographical Union at No. 45 Eliot street. Herbert W. Cooke will talk on his recent trip to Colorado Springs and the Union Printers' Home, and Thomas M. Nolan will speak on "Individual Work in Advancing the Label."

LABOR NOTES.

William H. Bonss has been elected president of the joint executive board of the five Boston locals of metal polishers, platers and buffers, brass moulders and brass and gas fitters' workers, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Isaac Congdon.

Boston Pattern Makers' Association has decided to hold its annual ball March 28 in Odd Fellows' Hall. To-morrow night the original Mayflower of Hall. To-morrow night the original Mayflower of Pattern Makers' Association will hold their annual banquet.

The Lynn bricklayers' Union will consider a proposition at to-night's meeting to levy a five-dollar assessment upon each of the 2,000 members for labor and general trades union work in Great...er Boston.

OLD BEN BUTLER SUIT TAKEN FROM DOCKET

PORTLAND, Me., March 8.—A suit brought twenty-eight years ago against General Benjamin F. SCALY ERUPTIONS COVERED HIS BODY

Itched Constantly—Scratched Until Blood Flowed—Suffered 10 Years—Doctors and Medicines Were Fruitless—Tries Cuticura and Is Completely Cured

BY THREE BOXES OF CUTICURA OINTMENT

"When I was about nine years old small sores appeared on each of my lower limbs. I scratched them with a brass pin and shortly afterwards each of those little patches became so sore that I could scarcely walk. When I had been suffering for about a month the sores began to heal, but small scaly eruptions appeared where the sores had been. From that time onward I was troubled by such severe itching that, until I became accustomed to it, I would scratch the sores until the blood began to flow. This would stop the itching for a few days; but scaly places would appear again and the itching would accompany them. After I suffered about ten years I made a renewed effort to effect a cure. The eruptions by this time had appeared on every part of my body except my face and hands. The best doctor in my native county advised me to use arsenic in small doses and a salve. I then used to bathe the sores in a mixture which gave almost intolerable pain. In addition I used other remedies, such as iodine, sulphur, zinc salve, ... 's Salve, ——Ointment, and in fact I was continually giving some remedy a fair trial, never using less than one or two boxes or bottles. All this was fruitless. Finally my hair began to fall out and I was rapidly becoming bald. I used ... but it did no good. A few months after, having used almost everything else, I thought I would try Cuticura Ointment, having previously used Cuticura Soap and being pleased with it. After using three boxes I was completely cured, and my hair was restored, after fourteen years of suffering and an expenditure of at least $50 to $60 in vainly endeavoring to find a cure. I shall be glad to write to any one who may be interested in my cure. B. S. Hiram Mattingly, Vermillion, S. Dak., Aug. 18, 1906."

A Word to Sons and Daughters

By Beatrice Fairfax

"My daughter has been such a blessing to me," said a gentle, little old lady to me the other day. "She has never given me an hour's worry in her life."

I wonder how many mothers can say that? Not many, I am afraid.

A girl deserves no credit for being good to her mother. She is only paying in part a great debt. She never can pay it in full, for she never can fully return all the marvellous love and devotion that her mother has given her.

Mother love is the most beautiful of all loves, for it is the most unselfish. It is ever ready to give, and yet it demands but little in return. It takes no count of the nights of broken rest and watchfulness, the never-ceasing demands on patience and sympathy.

Girls are very apt to forget all that their mothers have done for them. It is more through carelessness than heartlessness, perhaps. And did the girls but realize it, no doubt they would change.

You must remember, girls, that your mothers like a little fun now and then just as well as you do. Don't exclude them from all your pleasure. Confide in them; tell them all your secrets; no one can sympathize like a mother.

A Mother's Side

DO all you can to lighten your mother's work. She has been working hard for more years than you have lived, and ofttimes the burden has been pretty heavy. Now is your chance to give her a rest.

Buy a pretty trifle for her once in a while instead of spending the money on yourself. When she looks extra nice tell her so, and see what a flush of pleasure your compliment will bring to her worn face.

There is an old saying, "A son's a son till he gets him a wife, but a daughter's a daughter all her life." Prove yourself a daughter of the very first quality and begin right now to pay off the debt of devotion.

A mother loves her boy just as much as she loves her girl, and perhaps even clings to him a little more. Deep in her heart she knows that some day another woman will monopolize most of his love.

A mother is never so proud as when she goes out escorted by her son; that is, if he is the right kind of son and shows her the proper amount of protection and courtesy.

Good Husband

A GOOD son makes a good husband. So remember, young man, that you are judged by your attitude toward your mother. Don't be ashamed to show how much you care for her. If you bring young men to the house insist that they shall show her the same respect. You owe her more than you ever can pay, but do the best you can by love and attention.

Every wrong thing you do is a stab to her heart. To see her boy under the influence of liquor is anguish to her.

You think nothing of denying yourself something in order to provide a bunch of violets, a box of candy or a theatre ticker for some girl of your acquaintance.

Suppose that some time you reveal that your mother is a girl, and ask her to go to the theatre or bring her a little treat. No girl will ever be keen pleasure out of such an attention as your mother would. Just try it and see.

Woman Startles London by Setting New Pace in Fad for Weird Pets

Wears Living Snake as Necklace

WHITHER is the race for originality in fads among society women leading? What will be the goal?

A little while ago a London society leader startled all her circle by sending them photographs of herself with her pet pythons coiled about her. Now another woman of London wears a pet snake twined about her neck.

Of course, the snake is harmless, but the average woman would shrink in horror from the mere suggestion.

London, New York and Boston adopted the fad. Then London women added cute little bear and tiger cubs to their zoo. They trotted out the dear little things attached to gold chains whenever their drawing rooms were thrown open to guests. New York and Boston again followed in the wake.

Will the American woman take up the snake fad? Will she twine a repulsive, steely-eyed, writhing reptile about her pretty, bare throat simply to be rated as fashionable?

LONDON WOMAN AND HER LIVING NECKLACE

Why Don't Women Make Motherhood a Serious Profession?

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

WHAT are the mothers of the growing generation of America to boys and girls thinking about?

Most of them are looking for "careers," I know, and wishing they had a wider sphere of influence—at least so they write me by the score.

Meanwhile they are neglecting that vast field of limitless influence—the training and grading of the little minds they have in their care.

Every day I see young American boys in the future men of the nation, the possible Presidents, millionaires, college professors, statesmen, artists—indulging in habits that are an offence to good taste and which will be a serious reflection upon our national manners when these boys become men.

Teach Your Boys

MOTHERS, I pray you, instead of striving to be "famous," teach your boys a few important items.

Teach them to stand aside and let "ladies" or charwomen or tired colored servants enter a public vehicle or pass through a door before them, and to offer a seat to any one in Woman's attire or to an elderly man.

Every day I see women pushed aside by Young American in such situations.

Teach your boys that it is inexcusably vulgar to attend to any portion of their toilet in the presence of any one.

Nails should not be trimmed or otherwise treated, teeth should not be touched in public places. Train your boys to go to their rooms or into retirement for such duties.

Teach them not to lounge or tip back in their chairs in the presence of women or girls or to enter a room with covered heads.

Make them realize the courtesy of touching their hats to women and older people and of uncovering their heads in an elevator when a woman enters.

Acts of Courtesy

ALL these simple acts render the world a more pleasing place for the abode of our fellow-men.

Teach them not to lie with their elbows on the table while at meals, and not to take their food audibly or voraciously, nor to sit in stiff, silent dignity and snobbishness in the presence of the gentler sex, nor to talk loud in a public place.

Then turn to your girls.

Day after day we are shocked by the manners of many young girls whom we encounter. Little girls coming from school, well dressed and fair, give vent to loud shrieks of laughter after passing some older person. If the person happens to be fashionably attired such expressions as "Oh, don't she feel smart?" or "Isn't she trying to be somebody?" often greet her ear. If she is noticeably poor or shabby odious words falls from the lips of the future wives and mothers of America.

Teach your little girls, dear madame, that kindness and modesty of behavior are the first two important factors in the education of women. If she possesses every talent and the apparel of the Queen of Sheba she can never be a "lady" if she is cruel, thoughtless or rude.

Teach your girls to avoid the use of slang, not to raise their voice in public, nor to talk loud, not to criticise others and to show consideration and courtesy.

Offensive Vulgarity

I SAW three young school misses convulsed with amusement while they watched a lady trying to collect her scattered purchases which had broken out of a parcel on the street.

The mothers of these girls were in fault for not bringing them up to be helpful and polite to any one in embarrassment or trouble.

They would have proved themselves refined little ladies had they gone to the assistance of the woman.

Scarcely a day passes that we do not see young girls whispering behind their hands in street cars and giggling while they look at some one opposite.

This is the height of vulgarity. Think less about a career, madame, and more about the manners of your children. It requires close companionship and tender confidence between parents and children to guide, prevent and example leave their influence, and once telling a child what to do or what not to do can hardly be expected to suffice, any more than one reading lesson suffices.

Make motherhood a profession. It seems to be a new and untried field at present.

HOW THE WIFE CAN EARN MONEY

Makes Velvet Good as New

VELVET so easily pinches that it is an extravagant article to use.

Grease spots or a stain caused by wear may be removed with turpentine rubbed on briskly with a bit of flannel. Two or three applications may be necessary.

The pile of velvet that has been worn may be raised by stretching it tightly over the top of a basin holding boiling water and stroking it gently in the opposite direction with a soft brush.

Most velveteens will wash, not once, but many times, if they are handled properly. Put them through two lathers of warm, soapy water, using a moderately stiff brush along the pile as the material lies stretched on the washing board. Rinse in cold clear water in which has been added salt, and hang dripping wet in a shady place to dry. Do not squeeze or rub, but if dirty use the brush liberally.

Happiest Homes on Earth Are Those in Which the Housewife Has a Keen Financial Interest

A WIFE should certainly work if she has the ability and if her earnings add to the comfort of the home.

It is a terrible strain on a woman to be obliged to look at every cent before she spends it. The constant care and watchfulness needed to make the best of the earnings—nay, of the average man —takes all the heart out of a conscientious woman.

To keep the bow always strung takes all joy from life. It is no wonder that so many women fall in what the world calls their duty to their husbands and families when they have an little money with which to keep house and children.

The economic condition of the labor market are such that it is only the few who can hope for salaries that will enable them to keep their wives in comfort. The majority must face the fact that death or loss of employment means destitution to those near and dear to them.

A Wife's Interest

Now, this terrible fact would be robbed of its horror were the wife capable of contributing to the family exchequer. Superficial people declare that it is a shame for married women to work; that it is taking the bread out of the mouths of single women; that a married woman has quite enough to do to look after her household matters, and that if she goes out to work her home will be neglected.

These are only some of the arguments brought to bear against the employment of married women.

To a certain extent they may be true. But no one can say anything against the woman who makes money under her own roof.

Go up and down the country where you will, and see if the happiest and most comfortable homes are not those in which the wife has a financial interest.

When the cottager who makes a few dollars on eggs and poultry to women who have become rich through their own efforts, in every case between these two extremes you will find an absence of care that is painfully apparent when the husband is expected to provide every penny for the family use.

What Life Holds

Every girl, no matter what her position in life, should be taught a means by which she could earn a living. It is useless to waste time over music unless very decided talent is shown.

To-day there is many a woman dragging out a bare existence on a small salary, perhaps by giving music lessons, because in her youth she devoted hours to the piano, pasting, but had no real ability, and found nothing which would be of use to her now.

Millinery, dressmaking, cookery, drawing or a good knowledge of languages can be turned to account all through life, but music should only be regarded in the light of a pastime.

It cannot be too earnestly impressed upon girls that marriage in the majority of instances does not mean cessation from work. It is folly for a girl to throw away her training. The efficient milliner, when she marries, should set up in business for herself and not imagine that she has done with the workroom for ever.

Adds to Comfort

The stress and stress of life will be greatly lessened if she sets herself to build up a connection and get a good business together. By helping the family finances she will have a variety in the day, and not a quarter the work she would have if she tried to make her husband's salary provide for everything. He, too, will be heartened in his work. The men who get on best are those who receive assistance from their wives. She often saves the situation, and he, in some instances through her efforts, for some have become men of the first standing in professions.

It militates against the chances of the children when all depends on the father's earnings. The constant cry of "Can't afford it" is an awful damper on young lives.

You may say, "I don't know what to do, I am neither a dressmaker nor a milliner." If you can do nothing else, you can let lodgings or keep a boarding-house. It is possible that to keep such a house you will have to refurnish with new appointments, and be obliged to add house to house.

The secret of success lies in trying to do a thing better than anyone else, and being sure that where there's a will there's a way.

In the days of universal technical education, it ought to be possible to add immensely to the general standard of home comfort.

Faborite Perfumes of Kings and Queens

THE King of the Belgians is a connoisseur in scents. He imports them direct from Paris, is always interested in testing the latest triumph of the perfumer's art, and, of course, has his soap, etc., scented to match the perfume he happens to be using.

The late King of Servia was also a judge and patron of perfume. He never went to Paris without purchasing vials to the leading houses where such things are to be bought and making large purchases of whatever perfume particularly appealed to him.

Queen Maud of Norway is supposed to be very fond of an essence of Russian violets, which is most subtle and delightful.

King Edward, though he does not use perfumes to any great extent, knows something about the manner in which they are prepared.

Some years ago, when he was still Prince of Wales, he went over some large perfume works in the Riviera, accompanied by the then Duke of York, the Duke and Duchess of Teck and Prince Adolph. The King took a tremendous interest in seeing the different processes through which the flowers pass from the field to the dressing table, and the whole party were so fascinated that they spent the entire afternoon there.

As usual, King Edward entered thoroughly into the spirit of the occasion, and insisted on doing off his coat and assisting here and there in the various departments, and the foreign guests and suite at first were rerning his living at it. In the end they, too, forgot their royal rank, rolled up their sleeves and went off with a hand at something, and went off with a basket of things as souvenirs.

As a rule, royal ladies make one perfume their very own, and have all the sister preparations—soap, powders, toilet water and scented sachets—made en suite.

A few have expensive perfumes specially brought out for them. Thus, Queen Alexandra has a perfume called Royal Perfume. It is indeed, an "essence," for a few drops impart an odor which is most lasting. This scent is being used at the English court and among prominent members of the aristocracy, while a favorite which is used as a compliment to "Old Ireland," is the Royal Shamrock.

MADE LOVE TO CURE EARACHE

DEFENDANT IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT SAYS LOVE LETTERS WERE JOKE

Declares He Wrote Letters Filled With Endearments in Interest of Plaintiff's Health.

Whether or not Miss Dooley F. Bembridge is entitled to $10,000 as heart balm from Martin Mooney is being considered today by the Superior Court jury which yesterday heard her story on the stand.

Miss Bembridge, a comely blonde of twenty-six years, now lives at No. 12 Hancock street, told Justice Aiken a tale of love that Mooney, a former Boston & Maine freight clerk, on January 14, 1905, professed, but changed his mind and left behind February 12.

Miss Bembridge sued Mooney for $10,000 for breach of promise. Miss Bembridge declared that Mooney "popped the question the first night he called."

A score of Mooney's letters to Miss Bembridge were introduced yesterday and the day before. The defendant on the stand admitted the affectionate tenor of their wording, but said that all their loving references to the love between them was in the nature of a joke, and written to cure her earache. He said Miss Bembridge had taken him to task one night because his missives were "too much like sermons," and that he had started in to "make them all right."

After the defendant had called on her one night when his head did not feel right, he wrote her that he would not take her to the theatre on the following Saturday evening. "The reason I wrote this letter," he said, "was because I thought I ought to go to see a doctor Sunday night, but now I think I ought to see a doctor by night, and have my head examined. I think I have symptoms of the brain, and I can't afford to get sick just now."

Miss Bembridge took Mooney to task for this letter. He said that he was all right, and only joking. He wasn't serious. Then she told him that she expected that he would be serious in what he wrote, as she had gone five years with another man, whose intentions evidently were not "serious." As a result of this "spat" Mooney changed his mind, he he said.

"This was all a joke, you say?" asked Attorney Risk for the plaintiff, in cross-examining Mooney, who was the only witness for the defense.

"Yes."

"And I suppose when you wrote her that there was 'no love like the old love,' and called her 'sweetheart,' that those touching words were just jokes, too, or indited simply in the interest of the plaintiff's health?"

The witness assented, while the spectators laughed.

"Did you have softening of the brain?"

"No."

"You didn't have any intention of seeing a doctor, did you?"

"No."

"And did you believe there was 'no love like the old love'?"

"Yes, sir."

Both counsel summed up, and Justice Aiken excused the jury from deliberating of the case until today, with a warning not to read the papers pending facts concerning the case.

"No Love Like Old."

Passages from Mooney's love letters follow:

"North Cambridge, Jan. 30, 1905.

"My Dear Dora:

"I received your note today, and I sincerely hope that you will never have occasion to be less happy than you are at present. With God's help, we must continue to love one another all through life as we do now.

"You remember when you were a little girl and the little things which happened then that we talked over since? Suppose we had more enough to talk them over, would things have been any different? I do not know when we can meet again. I cannot help thinking that there is no love like the old love.

"There are only two of us in the world. Why should we hide ourselves from one another?

"Sweetheart, I am thankful for your note and for the sentiment therein, and may my companionship make you always as happy as the wish of your dear and only sweetheart.

"MARTIN."

"Feb. 3, 1905.

"My Dear Dora:

"I did not think you would notice that little confession last Sunday night. If the hurt had worked all right it would not have happened, but I am glad you called my attention to it, because it makes me feel that you love me now just as you did long ago, and I don't want you to love me any better than that, because that was the best and purest kind of love, which only comes to us once in a lifetime, and I hope you will always love me as my own little Dora did, and it will make me far happier than all the furniture and Magee ranges in the United States would.

"And I want to be judged by the same standard. If you give me your good, honest love you must expect from me just as good as you give.

"The reason I write this letter was because I thought we ought to go to see a show Sunday night, but now I think I ought to see a doctor and have my head examined. I think I have symptoms of the brain, and I can't afford to get sick just now.

"Goodby, Sweetheart.

"MARTIN."

"North Cambridge, Jan. 23.

"My Dear Little Sweetheart of Long Ago:

"I love you very much—more than you think, perhaps—and if I started to show you how much I do, you would say I was foolish, and you must expect me to do all things in a sensible manner, and when I say I love you very much.

"MARTIN."

"North Cambridge, Feb. 18, 1905.

"My Dear Dora:

"Your actions last Sunday night have completely changed my opinion of you, and for that reason we cannot be friends any longer.

"Respectfully,

"MARTIN MOONEY."

LOVE'S FADING TOLD BY LETTERS

"WITH God's help we must continue to love one another all through life, as we do now. May my companionship make you always as happy, is the wish of your first and only sweetheart.

"I cannot help thinking that there is no love like the old love."—From the letter of January 30, 1905, six days after the alleged proposal and acceptance.

"I FEEL that you love me now, just as you did long ago. That was the purest kind of love, which only comes to us once in a lifetime. I hope you will always love me as my own little Dora did, and it will make me far happier than all the furniture and Magee ranges in the United States.

"I think I cught to see a doctor and have my head examined. I think I have softening of the brain, and I can't afford to get sick just now. Good-by, sweetheart. MARTIN."—From letter of February 3, 1905, quoted next which led to the estrangement.

"YOUR actions last Sunday night have completely changed my opinion of you, and for that reason we cannot be friends any longer. Respectfully, MARTIN."—From the letter of February 13, 1905, which caused the suit to be brought.

DIES IN BELFRY RINGING ALARM

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, March 8.—With his hand clutching the rope attached to the bell above, Henry Louis T. Philips, the veteran sexton of the Christian Church, Assonet, fell dead early in the evening while ringing an alarm of fire.

Hearing the bell ring but three times, people in the village investigated and found Phillips lying dead on the floor of the belfry, with his hand tightly clutching the rope. He was sixty-one years of age.

FOUR NATIONS IN FAR EAST PACT

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Thanks in great measure to the efforts of King Edward, an agreement between England, France, Russia and Japan in regard to all questions involving their interests in the far east may now be considered an accomplished fact.

This important result coincides with the conclusion of Anglo-Russian understanding after prolonged negotiations between London and St. Petersburg.

"The Bracebridge Diamonds," Or, The Heart of a Woman"

A Thrilling Romance of Love and Hate, Adventure and Intrigue

CHAPTER LII.

Mueller Again

Copyright, 1907, by American Journal Examiner.

IT was with some relief that Monica, just two days before the date of their projected departure for Florida, found Sylvia in Raymond's study one afternoon occupied in arranging the books, papers and other belongings of the deceased.

This study was a small apartment adjoining Raymond's bedroom, and it had always been reserved and kept in order exclusively for the young man, not a book or paper being removed from the position in which he had left them during his many long absences from Montevallo. Just as the studio in the wood had been Ruth Pritchard's special care, so had the charge of Raymond's study ever been Sylvia's exclusive prerogative.

"I will go to give this place a thorough dusting and overhauling before I leave Mooreombe, Monica," Sylvia said, with a little catch in her voice as her friend entered the room. "Will you please help me, some, to take down all the books and piles of paper from the shelves? I want to dust them properly."

Monica was only too glad to be of some use to Sylvia. In ten minutes the shelves were cleared and many books and papers heaped on a table in readiness to be dusted and replaced in their accustomed places.

"I have arranged with mother and father, Monica, that you are never to be altered in any way, and none of these things ever removed," Sylvia said, as she went on with her task. It is still to be a gentleman's study, and so one is to come again to have the use of it. Everything is to be left exactly as it was when he occupied it; and mother has promised to attend to it during my absence."

Sylvia's voice was steady now, but there was an infinite sadness in its subdued, hopeless tones. Monica felt that she could not trust herself to speak.

At this moment Dr. Mueller's voice sounded at the study door.

"May I see you for a few minutes, Sylvia? I want to tell you something important. Your mother told me I should find you here."

As he entered the room Monica quietly withdrew. The "something important" was probably intended for Sylvia's ears alone, and Monica always had a shrinking horror of being "in the way" on such occasions.

Mueller looked pale and anxious. He had discarded the stick a few days before, and took in the details of the room and the emptied shelves in one rapid glance; then his eyes rested wistfully on Sylvia's colorless face and slender, almost attenuated, black robed figure.

"Your mother confessed to me the other day, dearest, that you felt uneasy at leaving Ruth Pritchard in her present distressing state without some more up-to-date and skilled nurse to look after her in your absence than Martha Jenner, so I've taken the liberty, Sylvia, to procure an excellent woman to fill the post. She will arrive to-night; you are sure to find her satisfactory. One of my friends and best friends has recommended her, so you need have no hesitation, dearest, in leaving Ruth in her charge."

Sylvia was genuinely grateful. Every line of her face bespoke it as she glanced at John.

"That is so truly kind and thoughtful of you. I have been really uneasy about leaving Ruth altogether in the hands of Martha. But now I shall have no further fears on this score. I am glad the nurse is coming to-night. I will have a day or two's talk with her over Ruth's strange condition."

Insinuations

"You are as deeply attached as ever, I see, to this affair, girl, dearest, notwithstanding all."

Ruth Pritchard has ever been as a sister to me, Carl. What do you mean by notwithstanding all?"

"Oh, nothing. At least, I may explain myself further. Mueller responded tastily, and he glanced away from Sylvia's averted head with a momentary expression of embarrassment, turned his eyes upon a crumpled newspaper lying on the top of one of the bundles of papers which Sylvia had removed from the shelves.

"Ah, the old number of the Journal?" he said absently, as he mechanically unfolded the paper and glanced down its columns. "Stay! There is something marked with a blue pencil here, Sylvia."

The early twilight shadows had begun to gather in the room, and Sylvia rose and necessary to move closer to the window in order to ascertain what the contents of the marked paragraphs were. Sylvia and he stooped together over the newspaper, and simultaneously their eyes fell upon the heading:

THE BLACK HORSE INN POISONING CASE.

CLOSE OF THE INQUIRY.

DISCHARGE OF DR. SEWELL.

"Oh! that confounded case! Who took the trouble of sending a copy of it to us, the newspaper?" Mueller said, with an old, grieving look upon his face as he read the gathering shadows.

Sylvia pushed the newspaper in his hand and tossed it into the fire. "I don't know, dear," she answered.

5,000 OUT AT SHEA'S ORDER

CHICAGO, March 8.—Cornelius P. Shea, president of the International Teamsters' Union, has called a strike that may tie up the entire delivery and undertaking business of the city and throw 5,000 men out of employment.

The strike is against A. B. Perrigo, president of the South Side Liverymen and Undertakers' Association and a personal foe of Shea. Perrigo testified against Shea in the recent trial of the international president. The union declares Perrigo broke an agreement.

HORSES RAN AWAY WITH BLAZING HACK

PORTLAND, Me., March 8.—A spectacular scene was presented to a curbstone audience last night when a blazing hack, drawn by two terrified horses running at breakneck speed, went through the principal streets. A small stove inside the vehicle had ignited the woodwork while the driver was out.

POPE CARS

IN

The products of the immense Automobile Plants of the POPE COMPANY—a whole automobile show in itself—Pope-Toledo, Pope-Hartford, Pope-Tribune, Pope-Waverley—big cars; little cars. Magnificent Limousines, Stylish Demi-Limousines. Medium and High Powered Touring Cars, Medium and High Powered Gasoline Runabouts. Open and Closed Electric Chelseas, Stanhopes, Phaetons, Surreys, Runabouts and Road Wagons. Also a "HALL OF FAME" by themselves at the Automobile Show.

Heretofore there was no single space large enough to group the products of its plants in one exhibit, PAUL REVERE HALL, adjoining the main exhibit hall, was secured. Isn't it fitting and appropriate that Paul Revere Hall, named for the mechanical master of the revolutionary period, should contain a complete exhibit of the acknowledged mechanical masterpieces of the automobile world? A thing that should be significant for the prospective purchaser of a motor car is the fact that the factories of the POPE COMPANY did, by far, the largest gasoline car business in the United States, last year. And if the products of the Indianapolis factory, where POPE-WAVERLEY ELECTRICS are made, is added, the POPE COMPANY stands head and shoulders in the lead in the motor car industry of the world. The POPES will build in 1907 more high powered Four Cylinder Gasoline Cars than any other makes in the United States.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

AUTO SHOW WILL OPEN TOMORROW

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The visiting motorists, especially those connected with the trade, are coming to town in large numbers in anticipation of the Automobile Show, which opens in Mechanics Building and Horticultural Hall tomorrow evening. The exhibits are almost all in town and the scene around the halls early to-day was one of bustle and activity. Machines were arriving in great numbers, and all of the large entrances to the hall were being utilized, special skids, over which to haul the cars indoors, having been placed in position.

Inside the hall there was an equally lively scene. Each of the exhibitors had one or more men receiving the cars which will form a portion of the big show during the coming week, and these men were hard at work getting the spaces in condition that will bear inspection to-morrow evening. There were no drones in the building. Each and every man had his allotted duty to perform and he performed it in such an excellent manner that in a comparatively short time there was every semblance of a forthcoming automobile show.

At Horticultural Hall much the same scene was being enacted. As at Mechanics Building, there was something done every minute of the day, and when the doors of these buildings are thrown open to-morrow evening it will be seen that Boston has indeed a record-breaking show.

President John Kane Mills of the Dragon Automobile Company has made an entry of four of his cars for the forthcoming Glidden tour, requesting that they be numbered 8, 10, 13 and 20, respectively, and the understanding that he may enter more of these cars if he so desires. In making these entries, Mr. Mills makes them irrespective of conditions that may be adopted for the tour, but makes five suggestions, which are in the main well-timed and reasonable.

He suggests that the route be selected through large cities; that the run be held before July; that the preliminary survey of the course be made by volunteers; that all official printed matter regarding the route be published without advertising of any manufacturer or manufacturers; that no member of the committee having charge of the tour shall be in anywise connected with the trade either in a selling, manufacturing or advertising interest, or "with newspaper interests."

* * *

Mr. Perlman's challenge, issued on behalf of the Welch car, for a race from New York to Boston during the Boston show, seems to be developing into a miniature Glidden tour.

A. L. Kull, who always has a chip on his shoulder whenever a competition of any kind is being talked of, is going to be a starter with a two cars. Discussing his entry, Mr. Kull said that he had been waiting for some of his big overland competitors to take up the Welch challenge.

"It seemed to me," said Mr. Kull, "that it was up to some of those high priced makers to cross swords with Mr. Perlman if there was any little matter between them which required a contention in order to do honor to their ladies or for the advancement of their cars. As the Matheson and the Frayer-Miller seem to possess the only speeding cars in this vicinity, it seems proper for a low priced fellow like me to step in and bid.

"I have arranged with Mr. Perlman for the entry of a Model B Wayne and the Dragon. I shall drive the Wayne myself and John Haynes of Worcester will see what he can do with the Dragon.

"This little Perlman affair will be one of the best things ever arranged, because it will be a straight stock touring car event, which will keep up enthusiasm with the buying public, and show what standard American touring cars will do under Winter conditions.

"Mr. Perlman is to be congratulated on having thought up this scheme, and I certainly up to us to support him.

"There will be hoped-enough for all, as say car that will stand up through the snow, slush, mud and low temperature New York and Boston and get through at all is a good car."

HOW JOSS AND DONAHUE SWORE OFF

Red Donahue has purchased a prosperous little restaurant and saloon in Philadelphia for $12,000. Red's entry into the saloon will not affect him much, as he had a long time since passed up any idea of persistently chasing the almost elusive dollar. Every day, however, when "Red" was one of the merriest blades on the circuit. The stories they tell of Red and his doings are countless.

To Addie Joss does Donahue owe his regeneration and his subsequent success. A number of those who imbibe not wisely, but too well, have tried to help Addie was now reclaimed by Donahue. A few years ago, after Joss and Donahue had been trying to put temptation out of everybody's way by fleecing up all the cash in sight, during a short evening, they held a council on the way back to town.

Ever keen temperance Addie" queries "Red." "Say, what's a good sport. Why a fit ribbon on yer coat and hunt down Dream Row. Avaunt sinner! Let's join."

They didn't join any temperance society, but they did make a mental resolution to cut up John Barleycorn from that day for a year. When the year was up Joss and Red was inclined to return to the habits of yore, and to-day they are among the steadiest men on any ball club in any league.

BIKE RACER TO TEST ROLLERS

Two stars in their respective games will meet at the Park Square Skating Rink on Friday night, when Hugh Duffy, the cracking bike rider, races Fred White, the roller skating speed king.

The men will race six miles, that is, Mr. Lean will ride the full distance while White will try to cover five miles.

White finishes behind in that with the advantage of four laps he has McLean beaten, while the latter has put a new kind of non-slipping tire on his wheel and says he a cinch.

FOOTE AGAIN CAPTAIN.

HANOVER, N. H., March 8.—Warren Cleveland Foote of Newton, Mass., was re-elected captain of the Dartmouth hockey team. He has played for Dartmouth on the team for the last two years and proved himself a capable leader during the season just ended. Foote is a member of the junior class and the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

SCENE AT BOSTON AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP AT LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

In the picture, which was taken expressly for the Boston American at the training camp of the Pilgrims at Little Rock, Ark., Hoey, the former Holy Cross star, is seen at the bat, while Peterson is doing the backstop work. Hoey is showing up well in both fielding and batting, and if he cultivates ability to return the ball quickly from the outfield he will undoubtedly prove a big help to the locals this season. "Pete" is making a big hit by reason of his consistent catching, and has so far improved over his 1906 form.

OUTFIELDER HOEY. CATCHER PETERSON.

TENNEY'S MEN LEAVE FOR SOUTH

With the departure of the Boston Nationals' team for the South today the local baseball season is under way in earnest.

Captain Fred Tenney, accompanied by players "Little Cy" Young, Cozy Dolan, Morgan Farrell, President George Dovey and Trainer Edwards left the 10 o'clock train direct to Indianapolis, going via Buffalo.

None of the members of the team will be picked up on the way, but will rendezvous at the destination of the Boston party.

The new player, Morgan Farrell, comes from Bristol, Ct., and played in the Maine League last season. He is considered a fine catcher, and will help the team out much in his department.

The players will go direct to West Baden and practice there for a week before going to Thomasville, Ga.

No National team has left this city for years with greater prospects for a prosperous season than the present aggregation under the leadership of Captain Tenney. The great first baseman himself will probably start the fans with some wonderful playing, which will outshine anything he has displayed in past years, for the reason that he is financially interested in the club, and his support will be all that a great ball player could ask. Much depends upon the capabilities of Tenney this season, as he has been given carte blanche with the management of the team, and he is not to be stinted in the least in regard to the requirements of the team.

Speaking of the possibilities of securing Randall and Sweeney, the new players held by the Chicago Nationals, President Dovey said:

"I don't see why the Cubs will want to hang on to Randall, the fielder, with the number of outfielders they have now, and there is yet a chance of getting him. Sweeney may be needed to fill Joe Tinker's place till that player gets around in playing condition."

BOSTON AMERICANS NOW ALL ROUNDED UP

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

A. H. C. Mitchell, baseball specialist for the Boston American.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 8.—With Grimshaw on hand and Freddy Parent on the way the entire Boston American League team is rounded up. There are no more recalcitrant or insurgent ball players to be heard from. The two camps are rounded up in Arkansas, the big camp here and the little camp at Hot Springs, thirty miles away.

To be sure there is Criger, who is still at his home, but the club knows all about him and could call him in at any moment. President John I. received a letter from the great backstop this morning containing the information that Criger's sister-in-law was very ill and not expected to live. She has been at death's door for many days and it is only a question of a short time with her. Criger stated the facts and said he would like to remain at home, under the circumstances, but that he would keep himself in trim all the time. Mr. Taylor replied telling him to do just as he thought best in the matter.

All hands are glad that little Freddie Parent has come to his senses and decided to report for practice. He ought to be here in a day or two and as soon as he puts on a baseball uniform he will be placed at shortstop, his regular position. With such a fast man as Wagner to stir him on Freddie will doubtless do his best to show that he is far from being a back number.

Old Grimshaw will be the regular first baseman, in spite of the great showing in practice of Unglaub. Manager Stahl is not disposed to experiment very much. The chances are that Unglaub will get an opportunity to show his worth soon after the season opens, anyway.

The weather, so far, has been all that could have been desired. Yesterday was especially warm and all the boys got a fine workout. Evidently the rain has gone some other way, for we have not been bothered at all by it since we arrived here.

Collins's Arrival Feature of Day.

The feature of the day's practice was the first appearance this year of Jimmy Collins, the former captain and manager. Collins went right to his accustomed place at third base and worked hard all day. His presence inspired confidence, as well as enthusiasm in the other members of the team. If anybody expected to find Jimmy diffident or coy at being forced by baseball circumstances to play second fiddle to Stahl, that person was doomed to disappointment. When Jimmy arrived in the morning he found a bed in Stahl's room awaiting him and he took it as though there had not been a great change in the management of the team since he played a game of ball. Stahl and Collins have been roommates ever since they left the National League and became organizers of the American League team in Boston. They are just the same to-day, apparently, as they always were. It would seem that Mr. Taylor now has the benefit of two managers. Perhaps this is not the right way to put it, but it can safely be said that Stahl will have the benefit of Collins's experience as a manager as long as they are both members of the Boston Club.

Uncle Cy Young got an awful clout on the elbow from off the bat of Jimmy Barrett during the morning practice and, as a result did not come out for the afternoon work, staying in the hotel instead and nursing himself. Cy was serving to the batters and had worked up quite a bit of speed. Barrett was at the bat and he met one of Cy's straight ones square on the nose and the ball went out on a line with terrific force directly at Cy. The veteran made a quick turn and tried to dodge the ball, but it struck him squarely on the right elbow.

Liner on Elbow Puts Cy Out of Business.

Barrett and Stahl rushed up to the veteran, fearing some serious injury would result from the awful swat. But Cy shook himself together and after a time continued serving to the batters. But he did not keep at it long, and after he got back to the hotel he called in Charley Green, the trainer, for a good hard rub of the elbow and in the afternoon decided not to go to the ball field. He was around as usual during the evening and told the boys that he expected to work out of it in a short time.

Bulling, the dismal rain from Texas, was thankful indeed by Stahl to go into the box and give the batters some practice. He scowled heavily, but took up his position and worked for about twenty minutes. Then he faded away and was next seen at the dinner table.

Gilbert of the Little Rock team and Heinleth of Memphis worked out with the Boston pitch. Larry Hanrahan of Boston arrived from Hot Springs yesterday. He has been at the Springs for several weeks and will work back to Boston by easy stages. Mike Regan left last night for the Springs. He stayed here only twenty-four hours.

Professor Green, the trainer, has lay patrolling, which he acquired chasing foul flies under the bleachers, which are full of the poison plant.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE OFFICERS.

The new Suburban League, which includes the Malden, Medford, Melrose and Everett high schools, and organized for baseball, football and basket-ball, elected the following officers at a meeting at Malden High School: G. A. Hutchins of Melrose, president; Charles R. Herrick of Everett, vice-presidents, and Thornton Jenkins of Malden, secretary and treasurer. All three officers are teachers.

Training Camp NEWS

WHITE SOX GO SIGHTSEEING.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 8.—For twelve hours yesterday, owing to a muddle of the train sendula, the champion White Sox went taking in the historic sights of San Antonio. Because of their delay here it has been found necessary to call off the game scheduled with the Mexico City team Saturday, and it is also be cancelled.

The St. Louis Browns arrived here, under the wing of their peerless leader, Manage Jim McAleer, yesterday. They will remain here until March 20.

HIGHLANDERS SQUAD GAINS.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 8.—Willie Keeler, Norman Elberfeld and Hughes have joined the Highlanders' squad, which is training here. The team had two hard workouts. The outfield was play with the exception of the absent Hal chase, whose station at first base was the care of by McGarty. The men were all stiff and sore after the practice.

DORCHESTER A. A. LOST.

All question of basketball superiority was settled between the East Boston A. A. and the Dorchester A. A. last evening when the latter team was smothered by the score of 94 to 19 at Lyceum Hall, East Boston.

WHITE RACES M'LEAN AT THE RINK TO-NIGHT

That the McLean-White handicap race at the Park Square Rink to-night will be the greatest race of its kind ever held in Boston is the opinion of those who have witnessed the men in their daily workouts.

Those who have followed the career of White argue that McLean will have a difficult task to overcome the nine handicap allowed the Chelsea flyer. It is generally agreed that McLean can negotiate the course far better than any of the other riders, and this fact will make him a decided favorite.

Louis Mettling, the Jamaica Plain cyclist, challenges the winner at any distance. Mettling leaves for Europe in two weeks and he is anxious sto try his skill at the rink once more.

JIMMY WALSH EXPECTS EASY WIN TO-NIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Tom McCarey is fanning on having as great a variety of referees as he has fighters to-night, when he will present his all-star card to the public. Edward Graney, the famous referee of San Francisco, has been asked to officiate in one of the 10-round goes. Abe Attell, feather-weight champion of the world, is the other star whom McCarey will try to enroll upon to act as a referee. Gus Hergot, the official referee of the Pacific Athletic club, will be the third man to judge the fighters, and Tommy Walsh will referee the fourth and last bout.

Every one of the eight fighters who are to take part in tonight's show are in good condition.

Eddie Mensey has trained hard for his battle with Jimmy Walsh. The local boy realizes that it means a great boost to him if he can defeat the Eastern man, and he has left no stone unturned to put himself in the best possible condition.

On the other hand, Walsh regards Mensey as only a side issue in the way of picking up a little easy money.

Joe men then Walsh have made the fatal error of holding an opponent too cheaply, as a significant fact that Walsh has trained just as faithfully for his go with Mensey as he did for his encounter with Abe Attell.

Fred Landers and Montana Kid present to mix things for ten rounds, both men being in the pink of condition. Kid Dutton and Fighting Joe Riley should put up a fight worth going miles to see, and that is, if Riley is in anything like his form when he was one of the best lightweights in the pugilistic game, and has never been knocked out.

SPORTING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

BASEBALL.

John Conlon, who made such a record with the Chelsea Knights of Columbia team last season, is Denver, will go to Pueblo, where Mike Twin Sullivan and Frank Neba, the veteran baseball magnate, are trying to arrange a match for the Red Sox and Benny Yanger.

Mike Twin Sullivan and Harry Lewis have agreed to box eight rounds at the Lenox club on March 28. The bout is scheduled to go fifteen rounds. Murphy is already in condition to fight eight rounds, but little time do get in shape, Sullivan will be in splendid condition for the battle and he has come to will make a good showing.

George Shorthein of Brooklyn, who has taken on Packey McFarland, will go to Chicago to-morrow for a few days' stay. He will proceed to Omaha and go to meet the "Storekeeper" at Freeport, Ill., on March 19.

Jack Hanlon, who made such a record with the Chelsea Knights of Columbia team last season, is now in charge of the baseball team at Yale. He is assisted by Hugh Duffy and his Providence team mate, Young is a star infielder and catcher, and should lend a reason on the Eastern team.

Fred Strobel, weighing twenty pounds heavier than Jack Root, is to begin practice in the Berlin Gym. to-day before he joins the Preston team on the Southern trip. He leaves Boston in a few weeks.

That's Barney Dreyfuss's first team," said George Dovey in his office yesterday, pointing to an old photo of the Pittsburg nine of '98. Dovey was one of the members of the team and formed the magnate that team started Barney on the road to fame.

Manager Dovey has secured Harrison Stagle of the Pittsburgh Nationals for Amherst in the '70's, when John R. Bracken, who ran for Governor of New York in 1906, was the pitcher.

A baseball scramble will be promoted by the patrons of the Polo Grounds this year in the shape of a tax on baseballs batted into the stands and not returned in fair form.

Manager Jack Hendricks has been looking over the batting practice candidates at Richmond, Ind., and has made some excellent impressions upon the youngsters.

Strange how ball players drift around the baseball world. Jack McLean, the Rode tall hurler, who has been playing with the Montreal baseball team, has been released to the Lowell Eastern League team, and will report there in April. Lowell is a home town for McLean, and will be a great drawing card for the team.

That's a number of players from the Kent Hill baseball team of Maine, who will report to the Boston club training camp next week, and every little club watch the work of Manager Selee's recruits to see if there is getting one each a wide stretch of territory.

Manager Selee now signs players from one end of the country to the other. For instance, I played with one of the best players I ever saw in the Canadian League, now with the Montreal team, and he is a native of Prince Edward Island, 118 to 122 pounds.

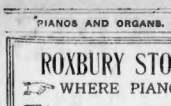
Fighting the Piano Trust



The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small piano dealers. They wouldn't frighten us. We are the "Piano Trust" interest in Boston. We have been cutting their prices for months—smashing and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been whipping the Big Piano Trust representatives in this city. We have convinced them we are making no bluff, and that we are in earnest in the fight, and almost any make of high-grade piano, new or second-hand, at prices that make the big Piano Trust sick.

PELTON PIANO CO.'S Real Bargains

There is a great difference in so called bargains. Where are the bargains you read about and never find? Come and examine the pianos on the south part of the proposition table. Before the fire we had a large stock of pianos and we had to bargain to lessen the heavy load it would be on the floor. We secured them on a trade basis and have put them in excellent condition. We don't attempt to make any profit on this lot and have marked the price to sell quick.

Salaries of Women That Teach in Public Schools

What Excuse Is There for Underpaying Them

Women that teach in the public schools of Cambridge, Somerville, Fall River and other New England cities are trying to get from the public decent, fair treatment, and they ought to get it.

In the schools the first thing to be thought of is the children.

If children taught by women are not well taught, if the women's work is not as well done as in classes governed by men, THEN THE WOMEN SHOULD BE REPLACED BY MEN.

If the women do teach their classes of young children—and they do—as well as men, then THE WOMEN SHOULD BE PAID AS WELL AS THE MEN.

It is true that women have been constantly discriminated against, and, being less independent than men, can be COMPELLED to take lower pay than the men. But is it not a shameful thing for a New England city to condescend to force a woman to accept lower pay BECAUSE SHE CANNOT HELP HERSELF?

It is said that some of the men teaching in the public schools oppose the efforts of the women to get equal pay.

We have great admiration for the teaching body in New England, both men and women. We regret extremely than any of the men should figure in a decidedly unworthy and unmanly effort to keep down the prosperity of the women that teach.

It is perhaps a fact that certain kinds of work in the schools can be done better by men, AND IT OUGHT TO BE DONE BY MEN.

Certain classes of unruly boys of advanced age are unquestionably held in hand better by men than by women. And it is also undoubtedly true that such work might properly be paid on a higher scale than the work that is easier.

But WHEREVER MEN AND WOMEN DO THE SAME WORK IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS THEY SHOULD HAVE THE SAME PAY.

As a matter of fact, we question whether it would not be far better for women exclusively to have charge of the very young children, and since the patience, the care, the gentleness that the education of young children calls for is so vitally important, WE THINK THAT WOMEN MIGHT WELL HAVE EXTRA PAY FOR THAT WORK, BETTER PAY THAN THE MEN WOULD GET FOR IT.

In other words, if it is just to pay some of the men an extra salary because their physical vigor fits them especially for the care of big, unruly boys, then the peculiar ability, patience, gentleness required for teaching the young children would entitle as many women to extra pay for THAT work. In other words, women should be paid AS WELL AS MEN.

We can assure the men teachers that the best possible thing for the welfare of all is for the women and the men to WORK TOGETHER.

Salaries in schools are not big enough. The cities of New England are rich enough to pay both the men and the women well. The men needn't have any selfish feeling that decent pay for the women will check any plans they may have for higher pay for themselves.

Independence League in New York to Stand Alone

(From the New York American)

THE annual descent on Albany by the Independence League is a crusade for good government. Already it has done much toward driving the corporation Saracens from the State capital, and eventually it hopes to rout them utterly.

A year ago when the League marched upon the State House it found an atmosphere surcharged with frost, and an administration completely hostile.

This year it encounters State officials of its own choosing and an administration that has borrowed many of its principles. Observing what has been done in one year, the League takes great hope for the future.

Every speech at the Albany meeting breathed confidence and resolution. The most significant of them all was that of William Randolph Hearst when he declared:

"I am greatly encouraged by the fact that our League has continued to increase in strength with every election, and that by first allying itself with the Republican party and then with the Democratic party it has been able always to advance the principles it was formed to promote.

"And I feel sure that the League has now reached the point in power and numbers where it can stand alone and advance such principles independently of any other party or organization."

In addition, Mr. Hearst appeared before Attorney-General Jackson and urged the dissolution of the traction merger in New York City, stating that it was against public policy, and in his judgment contrary to the laws of the State.

This same appeal was made to Attorney-General Mayer. The practical certainty that he would not dare to act against the Ryan-Belmont combine, and the equal hope that his successor will dare so to act, show what progress a year may bring forth.

The object of the Albany meeting was to urge certain needed legislation. Chief among the measures put forward, if one may judge by the references to it by every speaker and the applause these references evoked, was the Recount bill.

It is significant that sixteen months after the municipal election the insistence for that measure is practically as great as it was the week succeeding the close of the polls.

This fact alone is evidence of the deep-seated public feeling in favor of the recount.

Helping the Blind Toward Seeing

By Charles Fleischer

(RABBI TEMPLE ADATH ISRAEL)

HOW splendidly man continues to score triumphs over nature!

One of the ancient prophets rebuked his people because, having eyes, they saw not and having ears, they heard not.

Since that day, human sympathy and human science have succeeded in almost inverting the prophet's rebuke. To-day we may say: being deaf, they can hear; being sightless, yet they see.

The blind have much the better and larger share of this process. That is partly because we pity the blind more than the deaf, as we consider theirs the greater deprivation of normal power.

Excepting the little sound which can be conveyed to the brain through the teeth, hearing depends practically entirely upon the channels of hearing to which the ear is the gateway.

On the other hand, the eyes are not the sole means of seeing. To be sure, complete vision is not thus far possible without a normal condition of the eyes. But, as seeing is really only a mode of feeling, it is not surprising that the hands are very valuable auxiliaries to the eyes.

Most of the progress made in helping the blind to see has come through increasing the sensitiveness and the intelligence of the hands of the blind.

If a blind person can not yet be helped to see a sunset or to rejoice in the rest of the wonders and beauties of nature, which we who can see altogether take for granted, it is gratifying to know that at least means of self-support are being provided, and avenues of intellectual pursuit have been opened to the blind.

I have been moved to write these lines because of a new magazine for the blind which has just appeared. This magazine is the second of the kind in the world and the first in America.

The magazine is a heavy one, weighing about a pound. Its raised letters can, of course, be printed on one side of the page only.

This unique publication contains no advertisements and, furthermore, it is entirely free to all blind persons. It is called the "Zeisler Magazine," in honor of its founder, who has made its existence possible through a gift which produces an annual income of $70,000.

Surely, the entire public, as well as those who are most immediately concerned, should be deeply appreciative of this fine philanthropy which has brought the blind a little nearer to those of normal vision.

This is only another earnest of the persistent intention of mankind to overcome the handicaps imposed upon the individual through natural defects.

Dictionary of Misinformation

WEX JONES, Lexicographer

COMMUTER—One who drops bundles in the mud and swears at railroads.

"Wave the guy picking the oranges off the pavement, Bill?"

"He's a commuter."

"And who's the other guy saying 'It's an outrage, I tell you; it's an outrage?'"

"He's another commuter."

"And who's the merry sport that looks as if he'd just lost a million dollars and a good cigar?"

"He's a commuter who forgot what his wife shouted after him to bring home."—Boffy Dialogues.

SELTZER—Water with a brainstorm.

The extent of a man's gallantry often depends on the goal. He follows a good woman to the borders of paradise and leaves her with a polite bow. But he casts a bad woman to the depths of hell.—ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Little Editorials from the People

ARE WE ALL E. Z. MARKS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

No doubt most of the many readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN have, like myself, often laughed at the funny doings of Mr. E. Z. Mark. The ease with which that poor man is bunco'ed out of his money is ridiculously funny. But do people ever stop to think that we are all E. Z. Marks? When we read the testimony of Mr. Harriman, for example, and learn how men grow enormously rich by juggling with funds intrusted to their care, and when we consider how we, the people, have the power to compel these men to a just accounting, it would seem that we are as easy as E. Z. Mark's dupes of being. If we were as easy we would use our weapon, the ballot, more intelligently, and those of us who have a few dollars laid by would be more careful about intrusting them to the gentle mercies of our fiscal captains of finance.
